PORTSMOUTH STRIKE SIEGE AT END

G. O. P. LEADERS TO ATTEND OHIO PARTY SESSIONS

Renick and Walters to Take Part; Chappellear May Be Named Elector

HAMILTON ON PROGRAM

Democrats Await Word from President Before Announcing Their Plans

Pickaway county Republicans are preparing to take part in the state convention, which opens Wednesday at 3 p. m. in the Columbus auditorium. The convention will be for two days.

Tom A. Renick and John E.
Walters, chairman of the executive and central committees, will attend all session, and so will a number of other party leaders.
Delegates to the convention include E. A. Smith, Mrs. A. J. Lyle, C. E. Hill, and Helen Black Anderson. The alternates are Mrs. C.
C. Watts, Mrs. W. T. Ulm, Clyde Brinker, and E. C. Ebert. All, except Mrs. Watts who is away, will attend.

May Name Chappellear

C. C. Chappellear, former senator and former chairman of the county executive committee, is expected to be named a presidential elector from the 11th Ohio congressional district. One elector is chosen from each district.

The Columbus auditorium will seat about 4,500 persons. Delegates and alternates will require 2,100 seats while another 2,000 tickets are being sent to the county chairman.

Ed Schorr of Cincinnati, chairman of the state committee, will call the meeting to order, with Nolan Boggs, state secretary, to read the call of the convention. It is believed Daniel Morgan of Cleveland, a supporter of Senator Borah in the Ohio primary election, will be chosen as permanent chairman.

Principal persons attending the convention will be John D. M.
Hamilton, chairman of the National Republican party, and John W. Bricker, candidate for governor of Ohio.

To Express Views

Bricker is expected to express his views concerning various state and national questions, while Hamilton will ring the bell for Governor Alf Landon of Kansas, Republican nominee for president.
Ohio Democrats are uncertain concerning the date of their convention, awaiting an answer from President Roosevelt, who is being sought to open his campaign in the midwest with an address at the convention's inaugural.

CHILD BREAKS ARM

Marlene, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Steele, broke her left arm Saturday when she fell from her play wagon.

18 States Suffering From Drought

Lack of Rainfall, Invasion Of Insects Cost Millions

Crashoppers and Crickets Sweeping Over Northwest; Light Showers Insufficient to Relieve Danger; Aid of U. S. Asked

CHICAGO, June 29.—(UP)—One hundred million dollars worth of crops lay ravaged by insects and withered by a scorching sun today in the nation's agricultural northwest.

A United Press survey disclosed plague and drought damage in 18 states which agricultural officials estimated has cost farmers at least $100,000,000 already.

Rain fell in scattered sections over the week-end, and more was promised this week. But the results of the rains were problematical.
In most sections it was feared they came too late or were too light to save dried-out crops, or kill the hordes of insects which have stripped leaves from stalks and left fields of barren stubble.

Wide Area Covered

The double-edged menace spread across the agricultural section in the shape of a triangle bordered by the Ohio and Missouri rivers and the Canadian border. It reached south into Oklahoma, Kentucky, Arkansas and Mississippi, and west to the Rockies.

Heavy losses resulted from drought in the southeast. However, recent rains have replenished the parched soil there, and the prolonged drought greatly reduced the insect pest menace. The central part of Canada's wheat belt likewise suffered from drought which has been alleviated recently.

It remained for the northwest to fight off grasshoppers and cricket scourges and literally pray for rain.

The insect menace — mostly grasshoppers — was most serious in Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and Oklahoma.
Drought sections spotted the region from Ohio to the Rockies.

For nearly two months, the Dakotas have had only a few light showers insufficient for crops. Indiana has been dry almost a month. Rainfall in eastern Wyoming and north and eastern Colorado has been one-third of normal for the last three years.

Wheat on the Montana plains grew a foot high and withered.
Farmers reported there was not enough of it left "to hide a jackrabbit." Places where wheat ordinarily is waist high at this time of year are barren.

Stockmen shipped their cattle outside the stricken areas at specially reduced rates to provide feed. Farmers in other sections had to provide feed for livestock when pasture land burned out.

Centered in Iowa

The major grasshopper invasion centered in Iowa. Migratory hoppers flew hundreds of miles from Kansas to 50 western Iowa counties.

OFFICERS ARE ORDERED TO PUT CLAMPS ON 'CRACKER SHOOTERS'

Several complaints concerning youths shooting crackcrackers were received by police Sunday.
Chief William McCrady issued orders to officers to arrest all persons shooting crackcrackers or torpedos in the city.

IRVIN HAMPP TO FACE GROCERY THEFT CHARGE

Irvin Hampp, 25, Logan street, is being held in the city jail awaiting a hearing before Mayor W. J.
Graham on a charge of larceny involving the theft of groceries Saturday evening from a car parked on E. Main street between Court and Pickaway streets.

The charge was filed by Mrs.
Merle Thornton, Pleasant street.
Officers said Mrs. Thornton had noticed Hampp standing nearby when she placed groceries in her car. She notified officers when the articles, valued at $1.50, were missing. His arrest followed.

Police obtained a search warrant from common pleas court and said they recovered the groceries at Hampp's home.

JUDGMENT FOR $5,809

Judgment for $5,809.50 on a note was returned in common pleas court Saturday in favor of R. M.
Leach, doing business as the Leach Motor Car Co., against Elliott E.
Crites, South Bloomfield, and others.

A HOT SUN, beating down on dried-out land with no rain, is the drought again, hitting some sections of midwestern United States. These two photos, taken near Bismarck, N. D., show how the drought has scorched the farm land. At the top, three sons of a farmer stand in a dried-out field. Below, a typical village consisting of broken-down shacks and lean-tos, where the farmers are living temporarily. The skyscraper in the background is the state capitol.

HOLL AND HAYS WORKERS START ADDRESS C. OF C. ON CITY WALKS

Business Men Seek to Form Retailers' Association

One of the outstanding meetings of the Chamber of Commerce this summer is scheduled at the Pick-away Country Club Tuesday with dinner to be served at 6:30 o'clock.

Efforts will be made to organize a Retail Merchants' association.

Two speakers have been obtained for the meeting. They are Barton Holl, secretary of the Logan Chamber of Commerce, and A.
Hulse Hays, Circleville postmaster. Mr. Holl is expected to stress the value of a retailers' unit, and Mr. Hays is to talk about the possibility of improving postal service to and from Circleville.

Reservations for the meeting should be made with Nathan Gro-ban, Karl Herrmann or I. W.
Kinsey, or by calling the Hanley tearoom or the Pickaway Country Club.

A large attendance is desired
since the matters to be discussed are essential to every merchants in Circleville.

TRUCK HAULING GLASS BOTTLES GOES OFF ROAD

A truck and trailer outfit owned by the R. Beatty Motor Express, Washington, Pa., went into a ditch and overturned at 3 a. m. Monday on Route 22, eight miles west of the city, when the driver fell asleep.

The outfit, loaded with 2,000 cases of glass bottles and jars, was damaged. M. H. Gordon, 35, of Cross Creek, Pa., driver, and Nelson and Thomas Beatty, both of Washington, Pa., escaped uninjured. Deputy Sheriff Earl Weaver investigated the accident.

DONALD MAY TAKES JOB WITH GALLAHER COMPANY

Donald May, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie May, E. Franklin street, has accepted a position with the Gallaheer Drug Co. in its Dayton store. Young May graduated from Ohio State university in the school of pharmacy in early June.

'MADCAP SOLO' BACK IN OFFICE AFTER ESCAPING

Zioncheck Found Asleep as Charwoman Goes to Work; Ordered to "Get Out"

LEAPS HOSPITAL WALL

Maryland Police, Deputies Eluded By Man Termed as "Dangerous"

WASHINGTON, June 29.—
(UP)—District Attorney Leslie Garnett today ordered service attempted on an assault warrant sworn out last week against Marion A. Zioncheck. Action had been halted on the warrant when the Democratic congressman was taken out of the District of Columbia and committed to a private sanitarium near Baltimore, Md.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(UP)
—Marion A. Zioncheck, adventurous Democratic congressman who escaped yesterday from a private sanitarium at Baltimore, was found today peacefully sleeping in his office on Capitol Hill.

The ever-amazing congressman evidently made tracks immediately for his congressional headquarters after vaulting a seven-foot fence at the sanitarium yesterday.
He was peacefully sleeping there at dawn today when a charwoman interrupted his slumbers.

Sitting bolt upright in the chair in which he had been slumped the congressman pointed a finger at the charwoman and shouted:
"Get out!"
She did.

Rumors Fill Washington

A crowd quickly assembled around the congressman's office, interested in possible new developments in the hectic career of the man who among other things, got married, invented the Zioncheck zipper (rye, mint, honey) and went to a hospital for mental observation all in the space of four weeks.
Zioncheck's name was on every tongue. Rumors flooded the capital. One report was that the legislator had been shot.

KIRK IS TRUSTEE OF $75,000 ESTATE OF SCOTT BEATTY

The will of Scott Beatty, landowner of Madison township, Fayette county, and widely known in the western part of Pickaway county, leaves all his $75,000 estate in trust for his daughter, Mrs. Maggie Strope of Waterloo, and two grandchildren.

George Kirk of New Holland is trustee and executor.

Mr. Beatty died in Coronado Beach, Fla.

Under the will the trust is to be administered for the benefit of his daughter and two grandchildren, and following the death of the daughter is to go to the grandchildren.

The original will was made July 6, 1902. Five codicils were drawn after the will was executed.

TAXI DRIVER ARRESTED FOR DISTURBING F. O. E.

G. A. Linsley, 27, Price avenue,
Columbus, was fined $50 and costs
Monday by Squire H. O. Eveland for being drunk and disorderly Sunday.

Linsley, driver for the North-way Cabs Inc., was arrested Sunday afternoon at the Eagles lodge
by Police Chief William McCrady and Deputy Sheriff Earl Weaver.
Members of the lodge reported he had created a disturbance and when ordered out he broke a front door panel with his fist. The officers took Linsley to Berger hospital where he was treated by Dr.
D. V. Courtwright for a cut on the head and lacerations on the left hand.

He was scheduled for a hearing Monday afternoon on a charge of failure to have a state chauffeur's license.

BUSINESS HOUSES TO CLOSE JULY 4, OPEN FRIDAY EVE

Circleville business men are planning to keep their stores open Friday evening and closed all day Saturday in observance of July 4, a national holiday.

Full co-operation is desired by the Chamber of Commerce, supporting the plan.

JURORS CALLED IN KNEECE CASE

Kenneth Kneece changed his plea Monday afternoon and was sentenced 10 to 25 years in the Ohio penitentiary.

Twenty jurors have been ordered to report in common pleas court Wednesday at 9 a. m. for the trial of Kenneth Kneece, 23, on a charge of robbing a Columbus auto salesman of an auto, May 1, on the Darbyville-Commercial Point road.

Those ordered to report are Roy White, Darby township; Frank Dunn, Madison township; Key Reed, Scioto township; Rachel Weigand, First ward; Frank W.
Wharton, Harrison township;
Manley Carothers, Fourth ward;
Ned H. Bell, Jackson township;

French, Perry township; Doris Kirk, Perry township; Fannie B.
Kirkpatrick, Fourth ward; Laura King, First ward; Albert Zabb, Deer Creek township; Anna Hedges, Walnut township; and Adam Reub, Pickaway township.

Atty. M. C. Seyfert, Jr., was appointed by Judge J. W. Adkins to represent Kneece.

ITALY REMOVES AFRICAN FORCE

Rome Issues Orders to Demobilize Most of Army

ROME, June 29.—(UP)—The government announced plans today for large-scale demobilization of its troops in East Africa.

A considerable proportion of the military force now in East Africa will be brought home, the announcement said. The Gavianna division will be one of the first to return to Italy.

An official communique said:
"The repatriations are made by the rapid occupation of Ethiopian territory and the submission of the people. Whenever possible, the detachments which were the first to leave for East Africa will be the first to be brought home."

TWO YOUTHS BELIEVED NIAGARA FALLS VICTIMS

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 29.—(UP)—Two youths missing today were believed to have been drowned, possibly swept over Niagara Falls, after their canoe capsized in one of the worst Niagara river squalls in years.

Levi Rankin, 18, said he swam to Grand Island after the boat in which he was riding with Louis Keugal, 19, and George Hartley, 18, overturned in the sudden storm yesterday. Border patrol officers dragged the river above the falls and the pools below but have no trace of Keugal or Hartley.

Special Jury Is Called By Judge; Two Tonawanda
Plants Picketed

FRANCE IS TERRORIZED

Total of Persons Out of Work Reaches 180,000; Dock Workers to Quit

PORTSMOUTH, June 29.—(UP)
—The strike siege at the Wheeling Steel Corp. plant here ended today. The plant had been the center of intermittent violence since the strike started on May 22.

Special deputies and other officers guarded the plant closely.
The 250 company executives and employees who had been virtual prisoners in the plant since the strike started were able to pass picket lines unmolested. They have been engaged in maintenance of machinery and equipment.

Sheriff Arthur Oakes issued a mandate against carrying of weapons or violence. He said strikers had agreed not to molest those within the plant or to prevent transportation of food.

Judge B. F. Kimble called a special session of the Scioto county grand jury for Thursday to investigate "an increase in the county of shootings and lawlessness." He made no specific mention of the strike.

One man was killed and several wounded last week in clashes at the plant.

TONAWANDA, N. Y., June 29
—(UP)—Striking employees of Remington-Rand, Inc., established picket lines around the company's two Tonawanda plants again today.

300 Remain Out

Union officials said that between 30 and 50 employees who had gone back to work rejoined the strike. They said more than 300 employees were still out.
Company officials, however, said that enough employees were at work to enable both plants to operate at near normal capacity.

NEGRO CHILDREN TO TAKE PART IN PROGRAM OF WPA

The WPA playground program was launched in Circleville Monday morning when more than 50 boys, over 10, reported to Martin Hickey at the Southern Ohio Electric Co. field. More are expected Tuesday.

Hickey, WPA official, plans numerous activities for the youths, with softball to be stressed.

The program will be extended to the Walnut street school Tuesday morning when all colored children are urged to report. Wilbur Griffith, director of the county playground project, announced Monday that the negro children will be in charge of colored instructors, Donald Johnson and Georgietta Hill being named. The children are to report at 9:30 a. m.

It is hoped to have other Circleville school grounds open before the end of the week.

PRESIDENT AND CHIEF ADVISORS DISCUSS PLANS

Horner, Lehman, Murphy and Others Visit Hyde Park Home; What of Farley?

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 29.—(UP)—President Roosevelt began a series of conferences in his Hyde Park home today with party leaders laying plans to put into immediate effect the offensive campaign that he outlined Saturday night in Philadelphia.

The chief executive had engagements today with Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois and Frank Murphy, high commissioner to the Philippine Islands, who is being talked of as potential Michigan gubernatorial timber.

Mr. Roosevelt laid aside temporarily the interest in New York state politics which he has displayed lately and which was evidenced again yesterday when he breakfasted and talked for two hours with Gov. Herbert H. Lehman. New York Democrats had hoped that the conference would resolve doubt whether Governor Lehman will be a candidate for renomination to succeed himself. It did not do so.

Sought By President

Lehman has said that he does not want the nomination. Sources close to the president have indicated that Mr. Roosevelt would like to have him on the ticket this fall for the strength he undoubtedly would give it. But Lehman left for Albany after the meeting without new comment on his plans.

There was a feeling among friends of both Mr. Roosevelt and Governor Lehman that they would welcome an end of the ballyhoo from well meaning supporters of the governor designed to "draft" him. Commentators pointed out that although Lehman's name on the ticket admittedly would attract votes, the effect of over-emphasis of his desirability might be to insinuate that Mr. Roosevelt could not carry the state without him.

Governor Horner of Illinois was to discuss with Mr. Roosevelt the political situation in Illinois, where he has engaged in a bitter war with the Chicago Democratic machine of Mayor Edward J. Kelly. Murphy, just returned from the far east, was expected to acquaint the president with conditions there.

The president's desk was swamped with telegrams, most of them congratulatory, about his speech in Philadelphia accepting renomination. His secretaries said the White House at Washington received many more.

It was considered possible that before Mr. Roosevelt boards a special train to return to Washington tonight he might announce whether and when Postmaster General James A. Farley, who also is chairman of the Democratic national committee, will resign his government job. The president indicated at his press conference last Friday that he would be ready to discuss Farley's political future as soon as the Democratic national convention adjourned.

Remember When?

A number of southend residences were threatened by a gasoline fire Feb. 2, 1920.

Approximately 400 gallons of gasoline were spilled when three employees of the Standard Oil Co., while unloading a tank at Pickaway and Huston streets. They notified the fire department to flush out the open ditch on Huston street. Firemen washed the majority of the gasoline into a sewer in front of the George Snider grocery. After firemen left someone tossed a match into the ditch and flames 50 feet high flashed up. A number of houses were blistered and windows broken by the heat. No serious damage resulted from the fire.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

By Charles P. Stewart

The Democratic party is leaving the Philadelphia convention behind without definitely meeting the third party threat.

It is true that a liberal platform and "speeches directly to the people" have gone a great deal farther than the platform and the speeches of the Republicans.

The fact remains, however, that a large element in the northwest and in the industrial regions of Michigan, Ohio and western Pennsylvania is not at all mollified.

It is queer that the Coughlin-Lemke group term the Rooseveltians "communists" for going too far, while at the same time reverting because the Rooseveltians do not go "far enough."

Within the Coughlin-Lemke group are three elements. There are the agrarian progressives, then the group that believes inflation is a cure-all, and, finally men (who, although they may not realize it) have Fascist tendencies—and who are quite the reverse of Progressives. These last named object to the New Deal, as much as do the reactionaries, yet have catch phrases that the popular.

The Democrats cannot hope to mollify that particular group. But the Democrats could hope to make it powerless by disaffecting the down-right Progressives from the others.

NOT UNITED

It is obvious why the Democrats have failed to meet the issue squarely. The Democrats—as the Republicans—have many divergent forces Tammany and the south, and the south and the Progressive north-west, simply will not mix.

President Roosevelt had tried to lead gradually. The speeches have been his words, not the words of the convention. The cheers have been for party victory, not for principle or policy.

The president, therefore, has pulled his punches. Much has been said militantly, but the issues which the New Deal itself raised have not been fully met. Check them off yourself.

It is possible that the president believes once he is in power again, he can fight for his cause as he did during his first year.

The Republicans realize that. Indeed, that is their campaign argument. They assert President Roosevelt, no matter what words are spoken now, will go ahead with the New Deal.

Paradoxically, the vast restless masses are not so certain.

In brief, the "little to the left of center" policy of President Roosevelt is becoming less and less successful.

MARY MORRIS, who edits the society page for The Herald, is having her home on Watt street remodeled, and she has been having her troubles.

The other day she detected a brick-layer halving the bricks with his trowel. With a triumphant gleam in her eyes she approached him swiftly and said, "Isn't that rather a primitive way of cutting a brick in half?"

The man looked up, smiled and said: "Bless your heart, lady, there's a far more primitive way than that, believe me."

"Really, and what's that?" she inquired.

"Biting it, lady, biting it."

TALL ONES

Do you know any tall stories? If you do please pass them on that someone else may enjoy a laugh

the victories of the right during the closing hours of congress. When Senators Vandenberg of Michigan, Steiwer of Oregon, Townsend of Delaware and Holt of West Virginia killed the Guffey coal bill, the president probably lost thousands of votes in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia to a third party. The miners probably said: "Oh, what's the use?"

The blame falls not on the Republican senators and the revolting Democratic senator, but on the New Dealers who failed to hold the fort successfully. The last days of congress always are field days for the opposition.

Every once in a while, something electrifying happens on the screen, a new picture, a new personality emerges to make audiences tingle. This time it is a picture flushed with enchanting music, cleaved with a gay, amusing story, directed with the utmost finesse, acted by an excellent cast—and possessed of the screen's loveliest voice—Grace Moore's.

At the Cliftona theatre yesterday, Columbia's musical romance "The King Steps Out," burst forth in all its Viennese splendor. In it, Miss Moore lifts her lyric soprano voice to the tune of Fritz Kreisler music, and succeeds in thrilling all within hearing.

Handsome, talented Franchot Tone plays opposite the diva in the role of Emperor Francis Josef of Austria, a young monarch in search of a bride; he plays the part in fine fashion. Bouquets must also be thrust at Walter Connolly, who once more turns in a bull's-eye performance; Raymond Walburn, an excellent character actor who also, in his short film career, has known no wrong; Victor Jory, Elisabeth Risdon, Nana Bryant, Frieda Inescourt, Thurston Hall and Herman Bing.

AT THE GRAND

"The Story of Louis Pasteur," Paul Muni's new starring vehicle for Cosmopolitan Productions the feature attraction at the Grand theatre.

Muni, who had won fame by his stage characterizations, has made one smashing, artistic success after another since he began motion picture work, including such outstanding attractions as "Scarface," "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang," "Black Fury," "Bordertown" and "Dr. Socrates."

Now, in a sensational screen drama, he has a role that is heralded as the greatest work of his career.

RUSSIAN STEAK

Two pounds of round steak, pound well, dredge with flour and cut into pieces about three inches square.

Simmer two cups of onions sliced in four tablespoons of shortening until golden but not brown. Remove the onions and in the same shortening brown the pieces of meat. When well browned, sprinkle with flour, add salt and pepper to taste. Add onions, one cup water and one cup sour cream.

Cook very slowly until the meat is tender, about one and one-half hours. This meat dish may be cooked in a deep frying pan on top of the stove, or in the oven. The sour cream makes a delicious gravy.

For pain in the face, earache or toothache, fill a small bag with salt, heat it, cover with flannel and apply to aching part.

EVERY week, on this page, there is a FREE FOOD SHOW! Tried and tested Recipes are printed here—ones used by your friends and neighbors! Try them in your own kitchen.

Did you participate in the Herald's recipe contest last week? It is easy to do, you know, and cash is awarded to three persons each week who have winning recipes.

This contest requires almost no effort on the part of entrants. The rules are easy to follow, also. So there's no reason why you cannot send in an entry this week and every week if you wish. Do not send more than one a week, however.

Do as your neighbor is doing, ladies! Enter the contest now! All you are required to do is this:

Select a recipe you like, write it down, fasten to it a label or tag from one of the products advertised on this page, or a sales slip from one of the advertisers, and mail or bring your entry to the Herald office, not later than Thursday afternoon. That is all there is to it!

The prizes are as follows: first $3, second $2, and third $1.

All of the recipes submitted will then be turned over to judges who will pick three winners. These winners will be announced on the Household Page next Monday.

The Household Editor would like to remind all who submit entries to make sure they have sufficient postage attached to their envelope if they mail their recipes.

The names of the ladies and their winning recipes for this week follow. Send in YOUR entry now! You may be one of the lucky winners next week.

BEEF UPSIDE-DOWN PIE

1½ cups flour

3 tsp. baking powder

1 tsp. salt

1 tsp. paprika

1 tsp. celery salt

¼ tsp. pepper—white

5 tablespoons shortening

¾ cup milk

¾ cup sliced onion

1 can tomato soup

½ lb. ground beef.

Sift together flour, baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, paprika, celery salt and pepper; add 3 tablespoons shortening and mix with fork. Add milk, stir until blended. Melt remaining 2 tablespoons shortening in 9 inch frying pan, and cook onion until soft. Add tomato soup, remaining ½ teaspoon salt and ground meat; bring to boil. Spread baking powder mixture on top of meat mixture, and bake in hot oven at 475°F. for about 20 minutes. Turn upside down on large plate. Serves 8.

FARMS AND VETERANS

IN SEEKING to restrain the enthusiasm of veterans eager to join the back-to-the-land movement, the Farm Credit Administration is displaying commendable foresight and sound judgment which is certain to prove of practical benefit to those who are without full knowledge of the problems and difficulties involved in farm life.

The land banks have farms to sell and money to lend. They make loans up to 75 per cent of the appraised value of the farms purchased. The whole prospect seems quite alluring to veterans who envision the possibility of obtaining a home and insuring their subsistence.

"But," warns W. I. Myers, Farm Credit Administration governor, "I want to make plain that we are not seeking to sell farms to city-bred veterans who have had no farming experience. Just as much knowledge and experience are required to run a farm profitably as to succeed in any other business."

This is good advice and the veterans who are lacking in practical farm experience will do well to accept it. They have nothing to gain by plunging recklessly into an enterprise which they are not qualified to promote successfully.

SUMMER IN THE GARDEN

MIDSUMMER in the garden is a race between the gardener and his enemies. Which is ahead, the gardener, or the weeds and pests? As you look through many of the home grounds, the gardener is seen to be limping badly, and a good deal out of breath.

But the weeds and the pests are going strong. The weeds can live on soil where plants will die, even after long and tender coaxing. When the gardener disposes of one crop of those wicked bugs, the next morning an equally powerful army are feasting on his plants, growing fat and sportive on the soil enriched by his fertilizer and faithful watering.

The sun is a lot hotter in midsummer than in April. It seemed so nice to spade up that garden plot in those stimulating spring days. But how does it go with the thermometer in the nineties?

The gardener has an answer to such objections. He gets up early in the morning, when the air still has the tonic quality of spring. Or he labors in the cool of the evening, when the sun's fierce heat has abated. He hoes down the weeds before they get to a saucy and impudent height, where he can't rip them out without endangering his plants.

You have confidence in a man who presents a clean and well cared for garden. It shows he is faithful and industrious. When you see such a display of carefully tended vegetables and flowers, you believe that the man who possesses them will do well in any occupation he chooses. He is adequate for anything he dares try out. If a boy wants a job, let him show what

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up, and perusing the papers did give thanks that the political conventions are history, although found much of interest in the Saturday night talk of our President.

Still lingers the drought, although the weatherman is relenting to the extent of encouraging hope of rain. Out of some of these dark clouds will fall the silver lining so much needed in these parts. Pastures are burned out, but wheat, now being harvested, is excellent, and corn doing well, although curling somewhat under the daily hot sun.

So around the village, meeting John W. Glaze, wife and four children, of Des Moines, Ia., John being a former carrier of these prints and visiting here for the first time in fifteen years. John attended school with Mary Wilder, the efficient city librarian, and among other classmates recalled Mrs. Edson

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

JAPANESE SMUGGLING IN CHINA

WASHINGTON — With Congress and the Conventions out of the way, the President is expected to give some quiet study to the international field, especially to the Far East and a common policy with Great Britain.

This was the principal subject of discussion during the recent conference between Roosevelt and Frank Murphy, High Commissioner to the Philippines.

Not much is being said about it, but the situation in the Far East is anything but cheerful for the U. S. Smuggling of Japanese goods into China under protection of Japanese gunboats threatens to ruin American exports completely. The high-handed treatment of Americans in Peiping by Japanese troops recently provoked a strong protest by the State Department.

Meanwhile, Murphy reported, there has been an increasing influx of Japanese goods and nationals into the Philippines. The entire situation has been aggravated somewhat by the Los Angeles indictment of a Japanese lieutenant commander for obtaining naval secrets from an ex-petty officer in the U. S. Navy.

ANGLO-AMERICAN COOPERATION?

Roosevelt has told several who have conferred with him recently that he expects Japan, sooner or later, to take all of China.

This also is the tune the British have been humming in his ear. It is why the British have offered all kinds of inducements to get U. S. naval support. Even the much-prized Singapore base has been put at the disposal of our warships. In fact, the British seem willing almost to present the base as a gift.

ETHIOPIAN HOLE

However, the president got himself into a slight hole the last time he cooperated with the British.

This was in connection with the arms embargoes. Sir Ronald Lindsay came down to the State Department after the conquest of Abyssinia, secretly urged that United States stand with Britain in retaining the embargo. London wanted a united front against Italy.

The State Department acquiesced. Then, without a word of warning, London newspapers announced that the British were reversing their policy, removing sanctions.

This would have put Roosevelt in the position of removing his arms embargo only after Britain and the League said it was O. K. Republicans could make a lot of capital out of that.

So Roosevelt rushed out an announcement ending the embargoes. It came after the British decision on sanctions, but at least it was ahead of the League.

All of which is why the President is looking extra cautiously at the British proposal of cooperation in the Far East.

CHAPTER XI

JOAN LITERALLY stormed up the stairs to her own room after Julian had told her she couldn't leave him because she had been the best secretary he had ever had. Then she sat down and thought about the brief conversation which she had terminated so rudely and was immediately ashamed of her lack of manners. She felt humiliated by her own behavior which she did not analyze. Had she betrayed her emotions, she would have saved herself much unhappiness that she was yet to face. For the moment she was too concerned with what she had done and not what she had thought.

Like a little girl, she smoothed her frock, her hair and her rumpled complexion and meekly took herself downstairs once more. Julian was sitting before the hearth in the library. "Mr. Sloane," she began timidly and penitently, "will you please forgive me? I . . . I don't know what came over me. There isn't any reason for my doing anything so rude. I . . ."

"Come in, Joan. There isn't any reason for you to apologize. That was a most selfish remark for me to make. And I have been quite blind. You look very tired. You've been working under a strain all winter. That is entirely my fault. I have no right to expect that others are carried along on the wave of my own enthusiasm for work. It's going to be lighter now. Cream?"

Joan took her coffee and sipped it slowly without talking for a few minutes. She was struck anew with Julian's charm and tact.

For a moment she was filled with peace. It flowed over her comfortably in the fire-lit room, emphasized by the storm that had shaken her so short a time before. She felt wonderful. She was free, and glad to be relieved of the maelstrom of her thoughts that had occupied her for so long. She gazed pensively into the leaping flames.

Julian studied her and saw depths beneath the shadows in her eyes, in the pensive droop of her slighter figure. He read the growing maturity in the changing contour of her face. He saw sadness there and read, with a pang, the truth that Joan's maturity had come through sorrow. He could not guess what that sorrow might have been but he knew that the conflict had been within her only since he had known her, for this was the Joan who had come to him less than a year ago.

He marveled that they should have been so close—working together, sharing the same roof—and he should not have seen it before. He suffered for her, sensing those things, and for himself. She seemed so pitifully young to him, so alone. So far removed by years. To Joan, at 23, he must have seemed an old man at 40. He sighed for what was not.

As though divining his thoughts, Joan turned to him then to tell him that she had not been working under a strain but she surprised an expression in his glance that stopped her words.

And suddenly the silence between them was unendurable. They both began to speak at the same time.

"So you're going to be married? Will you tell me about it, Joan?" If Joan had only spoken first!

She passed her hand over her head wearily. "Yes, I think I am."

"Think?" Joan misread the sharp note in Julian's voice. Her nerves were on edge. Months of emotional strain had frayed them to a breaking point and she had never accepted the thought that Julian's interest might possibly be personal. Now, when he repeated her word too quickly, she answered firmly:

"I meant that I am going to be married."

"Alex?" He asked. "No." Joan managed what she hoped was a bright, happy smile. "Not Alex. Donald Newberry. You've met him when he's come to call for me, yes."

"Oh, yes," Julian tried to remember which one of them it had been. "He's . . . What could she say he was? A girl ought to be able to talk for hours about the man she was planning to marry. Certainly Donald was interesting to her or she could never have arrived at such a decision. She couldn't even remember when she had arrived at that decision unless it was at the dinner table an hour before. "Why, he's a stockbroker. Very charming, very handsome. He . . . I like him."

Julian might have repeated another word she had just said, but, hating himself because he felt like a grandfather, he questioned her gently.

"Can he take care of you, Joan. I mean, financially?"

"Yes," she said. "He's doing all right. Why couldn't he talk?"

"Have you set the date for your marriage?"

"No. You see . . . he . . . he isn't divorced yet."

Did she imagine that Julian seemed to relax then?

"Oh," he said, and that was all. "I didn't have anything to do with that. He and his wife have been . . . they haven't been living together for a long time since long before I met him. I've known him for a great many years. That is, I knew him when I was a little girl." "Do you love him very much, Joan?" Julian hadn't meant to ask her that question.

She put her cup down very carefully as though a jar might break it. Or something within herself.

"No." Her voice was very low but it was rather as though it was a reasonable statement that did not brook discussion.

"Then why?" Julian's voice was as low as her own. "It seems a right, wise thing for me to do. I've discovered that I'm lonely. I'm not a career woman. I have no art to develop. I have nothing that makes my life complete. Donald knows how I feel about it. I guess that's all the answer there is."

"He doesn't love you," Julian said it so firmly that Joan found herself arrested.

"He says he does. And does a man ever get married unless he is in love?" Or to marry money? She might have added except that she no longer felt that Donald had done a lesser thing by his first marriage. She had adjusted herself to seeing his point of view.

"Not unless he is a fool. But it is cruel to allow a woman to marry a man she doesn't love. The real love, that is both passion and affection, and different from any other kind of love in the world, is the only thing that makes the harmony that has lifted marriage to the most beautiful relationship in the world."

Joan heard every word that he said as it dropped quietly into the depths of her heart to stay there forever.

But because she was young, she said, "It all sounds beautiful but I just don't believe in it. I don't see why this won't work the same way. Love doesn't last forever. Companionship and affection grow together."

"They do, when they have the right foundation. . . . Joan, you are so young. Your life to share with someone you love. You have the wonderful world to see."

"There are cool forests and mountain streams and Venice in the moonlight and the coast of Ireland. The bazaars of the east and the pageantry of the western world. You have to see them through the eyes of the person you love, to see their cosmic meaning."

"Julian," Joan didn't realize that she called him that, "you must have been in love to understand these things."

"I'm thinking of them now for the first time," he answered.

"Then you have been in love," she said with a tremor of awe in her voice.

"I fell in love too late," he answered.

Poems That Live

MUSIC

The God of Music dwelleth out of doors.

All seasons through his minstrelsy we meet,

Breathing by field and covert haunting sweet;

From organ lofts in forests old he pours

A solemn harmony; on leafy floors To smooth Autumnal pipes he moves his feet.

Or with the tingling plectrum of the sleet

In Winter keen beats out his thrilling scores.

Leave me the reed unplucked beside the stream,

And he will stop and fill it with the breeze;

Leave me the viol's frame in secret trees,

Unwrought, and it shall make a druid theme;

Leave me the whispering shell on Nereid shores;

The God of Music dwelleth out of doors.

About 1880 the principal uses of oyster shells in America was for building up lowlands for wharves, railway beds, etc. The larger part of the supply was converted into lime.

The loudest noise ever heard in the world is said to have been caused by the volcanic explosion of the island of Krakatoa. It was reported heard by human ears as far off as Bangkok, a distance of 1,400 miles.

Under a federal labor law, workers in Argentina, with the exception of rural employees and household servants, are only permitted to work eight hours during the day and seven hours at night.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WHEN NOT TO PULL TRUMPS

AS OPPOSED to the two occasions when declarer should at once pull trumps, either by leading them or by forcing a defender to ruff an established side suit, as detailed last Wednesday, there are three kinds of holdings when declarer as positively must not pull trumps before he has accomplished another purpose. The first of such types is as illustrated by the hand shown below. Dummy's long suit must be led before trumps are pulled, or declarer will be unable to obtain enough discards of losers to fulfill a game contract.

♠ Q J 10 8 8
♥ J 9 8
♦ K 5 3
♣ A 6

♠ K 6
♥ 5 3
♦ Q 10 6 4
♣ K 9 8 5

♠ 5 4
♥ A K Q 10 7
♦ A 8 7
♣ 7 4 2

Bidding went: South, 1-Heart; North, 1-Spade; South, 2-Hearts; North, 3-Hearts; South, 4-Hearts.

The opening lead was the 4 of diamonds. Declarer's Ace won. At once he led a spade. West's K took the trick. West led a low trump. Declarer's K won. South's last spade was led. East's Ace won.

East led back a low spade, obliging declarer to ruff high. Then he pulled trumps in two leads, leaving dummy in. Two rounds of winning spades were taken. On them South let go a losing diamond and one club, but he finally had to give defenders a club trick. Declarer should have pulled trumps after he had deprived defenders of one of their high spade honors, then he could have discarded all minor suit losers on dummy's three good spades. While he could not afford to lead trumps before discarding one high spade honor, he need not have waited until both high honors had been pulled. That error cost South a trick. West's lead of a trump, when he won his spade trick also was foolish. He should have again led a diamond, effectively preventing the chance of declarer making 5-odd.

It should be noted that defenders cannot defeat the contract by leading trumps three times—making an opening heart lead, then repeating that strategy when West and when East enter with their top spades. That sort of strategy will surely give declarer 5-odd, as defenders will be good enough to establish dummy's long suit, insuring declarer's ability to discard his one loser in diamonds and his two losers in clubs on dummy's three long spades, provided declarer establishes that suit, starting to do so the first time either he or dummy wins a trump trick.

An opening lead of clubs will have the same effect as an opening lead of diamonds, provided declarer uses the same tactics of establishing spades as rapidly as possible. All he need lose are three tricks in the black suits. The next type of hand will be shown on Monday.

Laundrymen Compare Germs in Laundries

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A NEW IDEA was presented at one of the exhibits of the American Medical association this year by the American Institute of Laundering.

Joliet, Ill. The institute is owned by the National Laundrymen's association, and is devoted to solving technical problems. The particular investigation which the institute undertook was a comparison between the number of germs in clothes after being laundered in a commercial laundry and a home laundry.

Kathryn Hill, William Arbogast Marry Sunday

Bride Wears Gown of Her Mother for Pretty Service

Before an improvised altar of ferns, carnations, and snapdragons, Miss Kathryn Ruth Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hill, Orient, became the bride of Mr. William Edwin Arbogast, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Arbogast of Mt. Sterling, at a home wedding on Sunday evening, June 28.

A profusion of flowers decorated the Hillsdale home for the occasion.

Rev. W. Newton Mantle read the services which were preceded by the tenor solos "I Love You Truly" and "Oh, Promise Me" sung by Mr. E. A. Rigdon, a friend of the bride and groom.

Miss Maxine Bower, a former roommate of the bride accompanied Mr. Rigdon and played the wedding march.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory silk gathered full at the waist and trimmed at the neck and sleeves with beaded net. Her floor length veil was trimmed with orange blossoms and she carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses and delphinium.

Miss Helen Hill, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a frock of the same period, of orchid organdie with inserts of ivory lace in the waist and full skirt, and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and delphinium.

Mr. John Arbogast of Mt. Sterling, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

The bride, a teacher, attended college at Capital University.

Mr. Arbogast is associated with the Polo Equipment Company and the Ohio Willow Wood Company in Mt. Sterling where the couple will reside.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Arbogast left for Cleveland where they will attend the Great Lakes Exposition.

Mrs. Arbogast is the grand daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hott of Robtown.

Miss Martha Leist Hostess

Mrs. Lee Yunker, of Madison, Indiana, who is the guest of her sister Mrs. George Crites, S. Court street, was honor guest at a bridge tea Saturday afternoon at the Maramor in Columbus.

Miss Martha Leist, Watt street, was hostess.

A delightful afternoon was spent in playing bridge with prizes being awarded Miss Margaret Mattinson, Mrs. Howard Stevenson and Mrs. Ned Thacher. Mrs. Yunker was presented a handsome guest prize.

Mrs. Glenn Bierman and Mrs. Stoddard Raper of Columbus and Mrs. Comer J. Kimball, New York City, were invited in addition to a number of Circleville ladies.

Attend Row Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Brooks and daughter Ruth Louise were among the guests who attended the wedding of Mrs. Brook's brother Glen R. Row to Miss Martha Reichart, Saturday, July 27, at 7:30 o'clock at the home of the bride at 1389 S. 6th street, Columbus.

Miss Mary Murtaugh played the wedding march.

Rev. T. B. Hax, pastor of the Emanuel Lutheran church, performed the ceremony.

formed the single ring ceremony before an improvised altar of palms and garden flowers.

The bride chose for her wedding a floor length dress of white lace with short puffed sleeves and high collar, both trimmed with white net. She carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and delphinium.

Miss Caroline Row, sister of the groom, was maid of honor. Her dress was powder blue chiffon, with tailored neck and puff sleeves and her flowers were pink roses and blue delphinium.

Edward Reichart, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Reichart of 1389 S. 6th street, Columbus.

The groom, a son of R. L. Row of Jackson township, is well known in this county.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held for relatives and close friends. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Row will be at home to friends at 491 Catherine street, Columbus.

R. L. Row, daughters Ruth and Bernice and son Pete of Jackson attended the wedding.

BIOLOGICAL WAR ON PESTS BEGINS

RIVERSIDE, Cal. (UP)—America's intensive study of biology and sexology for the past 20 years at last may be utilized in bringing harmful parasites under biological control, according to Dr. S. E. Flanders, entomologist of the University of California's Citrus Experiment station.

Today, virtually the only defense of citrus growers against parasites has been the spraying with chemicals at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. Under the new system of biological control, where the parasite may become extinct through the simple means of non-propagation, Dr. Flanders hopes to solve the problem without further expense either to the state or to the citrus grower.

Imported Colonies Die

Dr. Flanders' first intimation that such a control might be attained came when it developed that many colonies of various parasites brought from countries of the world to the university's insectary station failed to thrive there. Most of these parasites were of a beneficial nature which, if they could be introduced into American orchards, nurseries and plant life generally, would have been of great value.

As a consequence, Dr. Flanders began at once an intensive study of the life, traits of certain of these colonies of parasites which, while thriving in other parts of the world, could not reproduce in California. He found that the failure of the newly introduced difficulty came about by the colonies to propagate. The study then was limited to an observation of the mating and propagation of the tiny parasites.

Secret Believed Found

In the end the secret was found, he is convinced.

Briefly, he found that in these

Check for $150,000

ANN COOPER HEWITT, San Francisco heiress who filed a $500,000 sterilization suit against her mother several months ago, is pictured looking over a check for $150,000 given to her in settlement of a claim against her mother. The surety company bonding the mother as Miss Hewitt's guardian made the settlement as a result of the heiress' action for an accounting of the $10,000,000 estate left by the late Peter Cooper Hewitt.

parasites male eggs are produced only by unmated females and female eggs only by mated females.

As a consequence, explains, if only unmated females are colonized in groves, the progeny will all be males and the colony likewise will become extinct.

With this discovery as a basis, Dr. Flanders is working out a program whereby he hopes to be able to maintain a complete biological control not only of the citrophilus mealybug, but of other parasites injurious to orchards and vegetable gardens.

CHICAGO PASSES CARDS IN RACE FOR LOOP LEAD

Pitching Staff Supreme as Giants Suffer Two Shut-Outs in Sunday Games

NEW YORK, June 29.—(UP)—Charley Grimm's champion Chicago Cubs were perched atop the National league today after dislodging the St. Louis Cardinals by setting the most furious mid-season pace the baseball world has seen in years.

After holding the league lead three short days before surrendering to the Cards, May 8, Grimm's baseball machine virtually disintegrated and dropped to fifth place by losing 11 out of 16 games. The frantic Cub manager appealed to Owner Phil Wrigley for a pitcher to bolster his hurling corps. And he got just what he wanted in Curt Davis from the Philadelphia Phillies. The rise of the Cubs which has been at the expense of eastern clubs dates from June 3, when they started a 15-game winning streak. In their last 24 games, the Cubs have won 21, and five of them were twirled by Mr. Curt Davis.

While their leading position is precarious, only a half game in front of the Cardinals. The Cubs should be able to stand off all thrusts with their topnotch mound staff of Davis, Warneke, Carleton, French and Lee. Rotating these pitchers every five days gives them plenty of rest between assignments, and Grimm still has capable relief when necessary.

The Cubs blazed into the league lead yesterday by liberally applying the whitewash brush to the New York Giants, shutting them out twice—3 to 0, and 6 to 0. French was the master of Carl Hubbell in the opener, distributing seven hits. Lee gave up a like number in winning the nightcap.

The Cardinals fell to second place when the last-place Brooklyn Dodgers solved Dizzy Dean and pounded out a 5 to 1 decision. It was Dean's second straight defeat, and his fourth of the season.

EAGLES AND OILS SEEKING HONORS IN FINAL WEEK

The final week of the first half of the softball league begins this evening with the championship to be decided. The Eagles, pacing the league with seven victories and two defeats, have the Eagles to beat Wednesday and the Circleville Oils to defeat Friday evening to clinch the first half title.

The Circleville Oils can win the honor if they defeat the Given Oils on Tuesday and the Eagles Friday.

The schedule starts out with the Cities Service Oils and the Eshelman Feeds this evening; on Tuesday the Circleville Oils and Given Oils tangle; Wednesday finds the Given Oils against the Eagles; Thursday, Eshelman Feeds vs. Pickaway Dairy; and on Friday, the crucial game. Circleville Oils against Eagles, is scheduled.

GRIMM CHOOSES DUROCHER, RIGGS, COLLINS, DAVIS

NEW YORK, June 29.—(UP)—Two St. Louis Cardinals, two Chicago Cubs and one Cincinnati Red were named today to augment the 16-player National league all-star squad selected by a nationwide poll of baseball fans.

League president, Ford Frick, announced the selections of Charley Grimm, who as manager of the champion Cubs has the honor of leading the national all-star aggregation.

Grimm named Jimmy "Ripper" Collins to play first base when Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants who was chosen for the position by the fans, announced he would be unable to play because of his ailing knees.

Grimm's other St. Louis player selection was "Lippy" Leo Durocher, shortstop and field captain of the Cards. The two members of his own team chosen were Outfielder Augie Galan, and Pitcher Curt Davis, Lew Riggs, Cincinnati infielder, was Grimm's final choice.

HELFRICHS WIN HAGEN-LAFFOON FROM ASHVILLE WIN AT TOLEDO

Victory Gained 5 to 2; Saunders in Good Form

New Holland turned back the first threat against its county championship claims Sunday when Asheville was defeated 5 to 2 on the Helfrich lot, west of the village.

Shadel Saunders, tall New Holland hurler, was in good form and has the Harrison township crew at his mercy most of the time. Bo Wellington and Sug Pettibone divided the mound duties for the Asheville squad.

Several errors at shortstop with Wink Wellington guilty, largely through an injured ankle, helped the New Holland cause.

Next Sunday New Holland will play the fast Lancaster Coca Colas.

GRANT HAS GOOD CHANCE TO UPSET TENNIS STAR

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 29.—(UP)—Bryan Grant, Jr., the "mighty mite" of Atlanta, Ga., has the opportunity today of becoming to tennis what Maxie Schmeling is to boxing.

A victory by Grant over Fred Perry, the world's No. 1 tennis player, in the quarter-finals of the all-England tennis championships, would be as much of a sports upset as Schmeling's whipping Joe Louis.

The match, however, promised to draw the largest gallery of the tournament. The British have been captivated by the tiny Georgian's pit-pat, retrieving style of game, the exact opposite of Perry's smashing, driving tactics.

BALL PLAYER DIES AFTER BEING HIT BY BASEBALL

NEW YORK, June 29.—(UP)—Funeral services were being completed today for Harry Kronenberg, 24, sand lot baseball player, who died in United Israel Zion hospital yesterday from a skull injury received when hit by a pitched ball.

Kronenberg jumped up immediately after being felled by the ball which struck his temple, and apparently felt no ill effects from the blow. He went home and went to bed, but became violently ill about midnight.

Rushed to a hospital, Kronenberg steadily became worse after an emergency operation and did not respond to an administration of oxygen by a police squad.

CHICAGO GOLFER WINS MISSISSIPPI TOURNEY

WICHITA, Kans., June 29.—(UP)—The smooth-stroking Chicago ace, Johnny Dawson, today held the trans Mississippi golf tournament title which he missed twice previously only in the finals.

The cool Chicago player yesterday broke the spectacular playing of George Matson of Wichita, who eliminated defending Champion Johnny Goodman, and won the title 3 and 2.

Dawson was the first man in the tournament to match Matson's shooting. The Wichita, a "dark horse" entry, slipped in the late going, fatigued after a week of gruelling tournament play.

Grand Old Game

Never let it be said we slight either league. The National League is even more prolific in its releases, though we must admit that a better job is done by the affable Bill Brandt.

He has gone to much trouble digging out the rules of baseball a la 1876 and sent them on so that the fans will know what it is all about when those old-fashioned ball games are played in the various cities around the loop.

The pitcher used to stand in a box six feet square and the batter asked for the kind of pitch he wanted—high, low or fair. Fans can get a taste of this old game and decide whether they like it the way it used to be served up. That is, with ten men on a team, nine balls for a walk and four strikes to an out. Will they be amused at uniforms with neckties to add the neatness of the players' appearance?

But to get back to the tenth man. He was a right shortstop and played about where the second baseman plays today. The key-stone sacker in those days hugged the second sack. The pitcher's box was forty-five feet from the home plate and the pitcher had to throw the ball underhand. If he failed it was a foul ball, and three such bails in one inning cost a team the game by a score of 9 to 0.

The umpire sat in a chair near, but not behind, the plate, and never left it to call a decision. He used a cane to wave the players out.

Amusing is the role of the '76 catcher. He stood many feet behind the plate, catching the ball on a bounce or two. He wore no protection whatsoever, not even a glove. On a strike-out he had to catch the ball without a bounce or on one bounce; otherwise he would have to throw the runner out at first. And foul flies were out in those days if they were nabbed on one bounce. However, fair flies had to be caught before they touched the ground to be out.

One amusing incident is the manner of pitching to the batsman. In taking his position, the batter could ask for a high, low or fair ball. The umpire would tell the pitcher the batsman's preference, and after the first pitch the batter could not change his choice. "High" meant between the waist and shoulders; "low" between the waist and knee. "Fair" meant anywhere between the shoulders and knees.

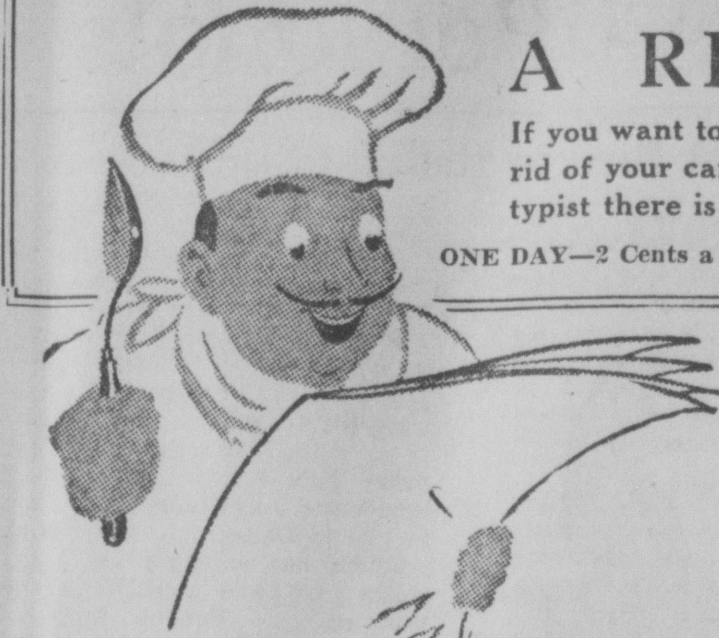

Until the batter had two strikes on him, it was a strike whether or not he swung at the ball if it came over the right level. After two strikes, he got an extra chance to look one over. If the third strike was over and the batter did not swing, the umpire called it a "good ball" and the batter was out on the next strike whether he swung or not. However, if the third strike was fanned, the batter was out. And waiting out a pitcher was kind of tough, as you needed nine balls.

There were no pinch-hitters in those days and substitutes could be employed only in case of illness. If a ball became lost, five minutes were devoted to searching for it before a new one was used. They used to have high, unclipped grass on the fields in those days. Hence the lost ball rule.

YESTERDAY'S HEROES: Larry French and Bill Lee, Chicago Cub pitchers who shut out the Giants twice and hurled their team into the National league lead.

Joe Louis to Tell Frank Fay What Happened

DETROIT FIGHTER TO GUEST STAR FRIDAY AT 7:30

Lupe Velez and Bob Ripley to Assist Vallee in Texas

Joe Louis, erstwhile Brown Bomber of the ring, has sufficiently recovered from his recent setback with Max Schmeling to make a radio appearance and he will come to the air as Frank Fay's guest next Friday night, July 3. Joe will tell Frank and the customers just how the disaster to the Detroit's ring hopes came about when they meet at the WJZ-NBC microphone at 7:30 p.m. (EST).

During the last few weeks Fay has been bringing guest stars to his program—Irene Bordoni, Bob Ripley, Jane Cowl and Deems Taylor have been on the list—but this is the first time he has entertained a sports figure at the microphone. Bobby Dolan, the versatile band leader who has been making a success of stoking in the Fay programs, will supply the accompaniments for Frank's songs with his band. The latest advice from the ringside indicate that Joe Louis will not sing.

VELEZ AND RIPLEY

Rudy Vallee is going to Texas to play an engagement at the Texas Centennial and the Variety Hour will originate there next Thursday, July 2. Lupe Velez is journeying from Hollywood and Bob Ripley from New York to join Rudy in Dallas for the broadcast over a WEAF-NBC network at 7 p.m. (EST). Other guest stars will be announced later.

Rudy left New York immediately after his broadcast last Thursday and is scheduled to play a series of one-night stands from Kansas City down through Texas, arriving at the Centennial Exposition in time to broadcast next week.

annual round-the-world trip in order to appear on this program and also the one the following week which will come from Houston. Directly after these broadcasts however he will head abroad on a three-months junket during the course of which he plans to encircle the globe with much of the traveling by air. On the Vallee Hour he will present one of his dramatized "Believe It or Not" stories.

NOTES — Harry Salter and Harry Sosnick bands will alternate at seven and six-week intervals for a 26-week musical program beginning August 1. . . . Johnny Green, who played for Jack Benny, will handle the baton on the new Fred Astaire show starting Sept. 8. . . . Joan Marsh, film and radio warbler, has written a new song, "My Very Own". . . . At this writing Bob Griffin, NBC actor, is heard in five, count 'em, radio shows: "Dan Harding's Wife", "Lights Out", "A Tale of Today", "Miniature Theater" and "Nickelodeon". . . . Irene Wicker, better known as the Singing Lady, won Radio Guide poll for most popular children's program. . . . Bing Crosby and Kate Smith won selection as most popular male and female singers of popular songs. . . . Wayne King led orchestras and Jimmy Wallington the announcers. . . . Eddie Cantor's new series will start Sept. 20 over Columbia with virtually same cast. . . . Eddie Duchin band is expected to replace Jacques Renard on the Burns and Allen program, July 8. . . . Rudy Vallee broadcasts July 3 from Texas Centennial in Dallas. . . . Andre Kostelanetz has extended his dance series to twice weekly for the summer. . . . Vaughn DeLeath, air warbler, is now Mrs. Irwin Rosenbloom. Her real maiden name was Leonore Gerr.

MOUNT OF PRAISE TO CONSTRUCT NEW DORMITORIES

WORK TO START IN WEEK'S TIME IN OHIO STREET

Rev. Ferguson Announces Plans; Church Group to Spend About $3,000

Work will start next Monday on the two new dormitories on the Mount of Praise, Rev. O. L. Ferguson, pastor of the Church of Christ in Christian Union, announced Monday.

The buildings will be 20 by 116 feet and 16 by 40 feet. They will cost $3,000. Both will be of two-story construction. The larger building will be used for family-size rooms and the smaller will be used as a women's building.

Labor will all be donated, Rev. Ferguson said. Various churches in the district will contribute. Plans for the dormitories have been approved by the camp committee composed of Revs. Ferguson, E. A. Keaton of Chillicothe, and A. E. Sager of Columbus.

The camp session will open this year on Aug. 19 and continue for 12 days.

250 'PRISONERS' LEAVE GUARDED FROM VIOLENCE

ed the protracted general strikes in France today.

The strikes hitherto have been comparatively peaceful. At Toulouse, several were injured, including the royalist editor, Edward De Carol.

The casualties occurred during a violent clash between adherents of the conservative right and left wing elements supporting the new popular front government of Premier Leon Blum.

Many were arrested. Massed forces of police guarded the public squares and boulevards.

Dock Tie-Up Feared

Twenty thousand workers went out in the Moselle valley industrial district, making a total still on strike of about 180,000. Five thousand dock workers at Marseilles threatened to go out again, tying up shipping.

DEERCREEK TOWNSHIP DOG IS FOUND RABID

The county Board of Health received a report Monday afternoon from the state health department that a dog owned by George Miller, Williamsport, was rabid. The head was sent to the department Saturday morning. Health officers were told the dog had bitten a number of other dogs in the Williamsport vicinity.

Negative reports were returned in two other cases, one a dog and the other a cat.

MRS. MARY MAY, PICKAWAY NATIVE, DIES IN DAYTON

Mrs. Mary E. May, 74, native of Pickaway county and a sister of Mayor John O. Black of Kingston, who died last week, died in Dayton Sunday morning. She was the widow of Lewis May.

Funeral services will be conducted in Dayton Wednesday afternoon, with burial there.

Mrs. May is survived by two daughters, Bessie and Marjorie, two grandsons and one granddaughter.

MANY DEMOCRATS HEAR PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Several hundred persons gathered in front of the courthouse Saturday night to hear the radio reception of President Roosevelt's acceptance speech at Philadelphia.

Local Democrats had an amplification system in operation and a slightly oversize donkey added color to the gathering. The "donkey" was furnished by Alonzo Starkey and ridden by Ted Moon, son of Mrs. Edna Moon, E. Main street.

CHICAGO POLICE HUNT CLUB HOSTESS' KILLER

CHICAGO, June 29.—(UP)—A sleepily boy ran into a hotel lobby early today and sobbed out a story of a negro or masked man who beat his mother to death and then scrawled "Black Legion" in lipstick on a mirror.

The victim was Mrs. Florence Castle, pretty, 25-year-old divorcee and night club hostess.

Her son, James, 7, awoke in the dimly-lighted hotel room to see the intruder "hitting mother about the ears" with a brick, questioned the man, and then lapsed back to sleep partly from weariness and partly from paralyzing fear.

COUNTY FARMER DEAD

Peter Balthaser, farmer of near Ashville, died Sunday. The funeral will be Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. in the Rutherford chapel, Columbus. Mr. Balthaser is survived by his widow, Effie, two sons, four daughters, 15 grandchildren, three brothers and a sister.

lator appeared after midnight last night at the swanky Ambassador Hotel seeking lodging. This report had gained such a circulation that everyone in the Ambassador had heard it but none had actually seen Zioncheck.

Maryland state police made every effort to capture the young congressman before he escaped over the state line. He was branded a fugitive from justice and orders were issued to use force to subdue him.

Dr. Arthur Ellis Pattrell, acting superintendent of the Sheppard-Pratt sanitarium, the private institution to which Zioncheck was transferred in a "pack" from a Washington hospital last week, said he thought Zioncheck was going to Washington and said also that he would be "dangerous if caught."

ties, where they destroyed most of the small grain, alfalfa and corn. Farmers in several states appealed for federal aid to buy insect poison. In other sections, they bought their own arsenic to mix with bran and scattered in the path of invading insect armies from airplanes and wagons. Iowa alone has spread 75 carloads of the poison, each 100 pounds sufficient to kill 2,000,000 grasshoppers.

The grasshoppers strip one field and fly to another. They eat their own weight every 24 hours, agricultural experts estimated, and when they become as numerous as 17 per square yard on a 40-acre field, they will consume a ton of alfalfa a day. They even eat clothing and chew chunks from pitchfork handles.

Grasshoppers are harder to kill than most pests. Only the heaviest rains will drown them. When the heat becomes too intense, they rise in the air to cool off.

A state-by-state survey of the stricken sections:

MISSOURI—Grasshoppers have invaded 110 counties.

IOWA—Grasshoppers have destroyed grain, alfalfa and corn in 50 counties.

DAKOTAS—Wheat crop burned out in all but southeast South Dakota. North Dakota critically bruned except in north central section. Rangers in both states shipped livestock to other sections or sold at a loss.

OHIO—Unless good rains come soon, some crops may not even be harvested. Early potatoes and

G. O. P. LEADERS TO ATTEND OHIO PARTY SESSIONS

Renick and Walters to Take Part; Chappelle May Be Named Elector

Democrats Await Word from President Before Announcing Their Plans

Pickaway county Republicans are preparing to take part in the state convention, which opens Wednesday at 3 p. m. in the Columbus auditorium. The convention will be for two days.

Tom A. Renick and John E. Walters, chairman of the executive and central committees, will attend all session, and so will a number of other party leaders. Delegates to the convention include E. A. Smith, Mrs. A. J. Lyle, C. E. Hill, and Helen Black Anderson. The alternates are Mrs. C. C. Watts, Mrs. W. T. Uim, Clyde Brinker, and E. C. Ebert. All, except Mrs. Watts who is away, will attend.

May Name Chappelle

C. C. Chappelle, former senator and former chairman of the county executive committee, is expected to be named a presidential elector from the 11th Ohio congressional district. One elector is chosen from each district.

The Columbus auditorium will seat about 4,500 persons. Delegates and alternates will require 2,100 seats while another 2,000 tickets are being sent to the county chairman.

Ed Schorr of Cincinnati, chairman of the state committee, will call the meeting to order, with Nolan Boggs, state secretary, to read the call of the convention. It is believed Daniel Morgan of Cleveland, a supporter of Senator Borah in the Ohio primary election, will be chosen as permanent chairman.

Principal persons attending the convention will be John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the National Republican party, and John W. Bricker, candidate for governor of Ohio.

To Express Views

Bricker is expected to express his views concerning various state and national questions, while Hamilton will ring the bell for Governor Alf Landon of Kansas, Republican nominee for president.

Ohio Democrats are uncertain concerning the date of their convention, awaiting an answer from President Roosevelt, who is being sought to open his campaign in the midwest with an address at the convention's inaugural.

18 States Suffering From Drought

Lack of Rainfall, Invasion Of Insects Cost Millions

Crashhoppers and Crickets Sweeping Over Northwest; Light Showers Insufficient to Relieve Danger; Aid of U.S. Asked

CHICAGO, June 29.—(UP)—One hundred million dollars worth of crops lay ravaged by insects and withered by a scorching sun today in the nation's agricultural northwest.

A United Press survey disclosed plague and drought damage in 18 states which agricultural officials estimated has cost farmers at least $100,000,000 already.

Rain fell in scattered sections over the week-end, and more was promised this week. But the results of the rains were problematical. In most sections it was feared they came too late or were too light to save dried-up crops, or kill the hordes of insects which have stripped leaves from stalks and left fields of barren stubble.

Wide Area Covered

The double-edged menace spread across the agricultural section in the shape of a triangle bordered by the Ohio and Missouri rivers and the Canadian border. It reached south into Oklahoma, Kentucky, Arkansas and Mississippi, and west to the Rockies.

Heavy losses resulted from drought in the southeast. However, recent rains have replenished the parched soil there, and the prolonged drought greatly reduced the insect pest menace. The central part of Canada's wheat belt likewise suffered from drought which has been alleviated recently.

It remained for the northwest to fight off grasshoppers and cricket scourges and literally pray for rain.

The insect menace—mostly grasshoppers—was most serious in Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and Oklahoma. Drought sections spotted the region from Ohio to the Rockies.

For nearly two months, the Dakotas have had only a few light showers insufficient for crops. Indiana has been dry almost a month. Rainfall in eastern Wyoming and north and eastern Colorado has been one-third of normal for the last three years.

Wheat on the Montana plains grew a foot high and withered. Farmers reported there was not enough of it left "to hide a jack-rabbit." Places where wheat ordinarily is waist high at this time of year are barren.

Stockmen shipped their cattle outside the stricken areas at specially reduced rates to provide feed. Farmers in other sections had to provide feed for livestock when pasture land burned out.

Centered in Iowa

The major grasshopper invasion centered in Iowa. Migratory hoppers flew hundreds of miles from Kansas to 50 western Iowa counties. Continued on Page Eight

CHILD INJURED AT YELLOWBUD

Irnton Boy Suffers Cut on Head as Autos Crash

CHILLICOTHE, June 29.—Eugene Shelton, 4, of Irnton, suffered a five-inch laceration on the back of his head Saturday night in a three-way auto collision at the Deer Creek bridge near Yellowbud, 10 miles north of Chillicothe.

The child was riding with his parents. Their car had stopped behind another car at the bridge entrance to permit a truck to pass. An auto driven by E. H. Schlanser, Mt. Clemens, Mich., struck the back end of the Shelton car and jammed it into the car in front. The child was treated in Chillicothe hospital and released.

TRIO UNINJURED AS CAR STRIKES RAIL AND BURNS

Three Columbus residents escaped with scratches Saturday evening when their car struck a guard rail, overturned and burned on Route 23, one mile north of Circleville.

The car was being driven south by Melvin Geiger, E. Main street, Columbus. Mrs. Geiger and a daughter were riding in the auto. Geiger told Fire Chief Talmer Wise his little daughter was standing on the front seat and when he reached over to put her down he swerved the car into the guardrail. Immediately after the crash it burst into flames. Geiger told Wise he had purchased the used car Saturday morning. His loss was estimated at $150. Chief Wise purchased the wreck.

A HOT SUN, beating down on parched-out land with no rain. It's the drought again, hitting hard in the northwest, United States. These two pictures, taken by a United Press photographer, show how the drought has scourged the farmland. At the top, three sons of a farmer stand in a dried-out field. Below, a typical village consisting of broken-down shacks and lean-tos, where the farmers are living temporarily. The skyscraper in the background is the state capitol.

HOLL AND HAYS WORKERS START ADDRESS C. OF C. ON CITY WALKS

Business Men Seek to Form Retailers' Association

One of the outstanding meetings of the Chamber of Commerce this summer is scheduled at the Pickaway Country Club Tuesday with dinner to be served at 6:30 o'clock.

Efforts will be made to organize a Retail Merchants' association.

Two speakers have been obtained for the meeting. They are Barton Holl, secretary of the Logan Chamber of Commerce, and A. Hulse Hays, Circleville postmaster. Mr. Holl is expected to stress the value of a retailers' unit, and Mr. Hays is to talk about the possibility of improving postal service to and from Circleville.

Reservations for the meeting should be made with Nathan Groban, Karl Herrmann or I. W. Kinsey, or by calling the Hanley team or the Pickaway Country Club.

A large attendance is desired since the matters to be discussed are essential to every merchant in Circleville.

IRVIN HAMPP TO FACE GROCERY THEFT CHARGE

Irvin Hampp, 25, Logan street, is being held in the city jail awaiting a hearing before Mayor W. J. Graham on a charge of larceny involving the theft of groceries Saturday evening from a car parked on E. Main street between Court and Pickaway streets.

The charge was filed by Mrs. Merle Thornton, Pleasant street. Officers said Mrs. Thornton had noticed Hampp standing nearby when she placed groceries in her car. She notified officers when the articles, valued at $150, were missing. His arrest followed.

Police obtained a search warrant from common pleas court and said they recovered the groceries at Hampp's home.

JUDGMENT FOR $5,300

Judgment for $5,309.50 on a note was returned in common pleas court Saturday in favor of R. M. Leach, doing business as the Leach Motor Car Co., against Elbert F. Critz, South Bloomfield, and others.

Zioncheck Found Asleep as Charwoman Goes to Work; Ordered to "Get Out"

LEAPS HOSPITAL WALL

Maryland Police, Deputies Eluded By Man Termed as "Dangerous"

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(UP)—District Attorney Leslie Garnett today ordered service attempted on an assault warrant sworn out last week against Marion A. Zioncheck. Action had been halted on the warrant when the Democratic congressman was taken out of the District of Columbia and committed to a private sanitarium near Baltimore, Md.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(UP)—Marion A. Zioncheck, adventurous Democratic congressman who escaped yesterday from a private sanitarium at Baltimore, was found today peacefully sleeping in his office on Capitol Hill.

The ever-amazing congressman evidently made tracks immediately for his congressional headquarters after vaulting a seven-foot fence at the sanitarium yesterday. He was peacefully sleeping there at dawn today when a charwoman interrupted his slumbers.

Sitting bolt upright in the chair in which he had been slumped the congressman pointed a finger at the charwoman and shouted: "Get out!" She did.

Rumors Fill Washington

A crowd quickly assembled around the congressman's office, interested in possible new developments in the hectic career of the man who among other things, got married, invented the Zioncheck zipper (rye, mint, honey) and went to a hospital for mental observation all in the space of four weeks.

Zioncheck's name was on every tongue. Rumors flooded the capital. One report was that the legislator had fled to Europe.

KIRK IS TRUSTEE OF $75,000 ESTATE OF SCOTT BEATTY

The will of Scott Beatty, landowner of Madison township, Fayette county, and widely known in the western part of Pickaway county, leaves all his $75,000 estate in trust for his daughter, Mrs. Maggie Strope of Waterloo, and two grandchildren.

George Kirk of New Holland is trustee and executor.

Mr. Beatty died in Coronado Beach, Fla.

Under the will the trust is to be administered for the benefit of his daughter and two grandchildren, and following the death of the daughter is to go to the grandchildren.

The original will was made July 6, 1902. Five codicils were drawn after the will was executed.

TAXI DRIVER ARRESTED FOR DISTURBING F. O. E.

G. A. Lindsley, 27, Price avenue, Columbus, was fined $50 and costs Monday by Squire H. O. Eveland for being drunk and disorderly Sunday.

Lindsley, driver for the Northway Cabs Inc., was arrested Sunday afternoon at the Eagles lodge by Police Chief William McGrady and Deputy Sheriff Earl Weaver. Members of the lodge reported he had created a disturbance and when ordered out he broke a front door panel with his fist. The officers took Lindsley to Berger hospital where he was treated by Dr. D. V. Courtwright for a cut on the head and lacerations on the left hand.

He was scheduled for a hearing Monday afternoon on a charge of failure to have a state chauffeur's license.

Rome Issues Orders to Demobilize Most of Army

ROME, June 29.—(UP)—The government announced plans today for large-scale demobilization of its troops in East Africa.

A considerable proportion of the military force now in East Africa will be brought home, the announcement said. The Gavianna division will be one of the first to return to Italy.

An official communique said: "The repatriations are made by the rapid occupation of Ethiopian territory and the submission of the people. Whenever possible, the detachments which were the first to leave for East Africa will be the first to be brought home."

TWO YOUTHS BELIEVED NIAGARA FALLS VICTIMS

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 29.—(UP)—Two youths missing today were believed to have been drowned, possibly swept over Niagara Falls, after their canoe capsized in one of the worst Niagara river squalls in years.

Levi Rankin, 18, said he swam to Grand Island after the boat in which he was riding with Louis Keugal, 19, and George Hartley, 18, overturned in the sudden storm yesterday. Border patrol officers dragged the river above the falls and the pools below but have no trace of Keugal or Hartley.

Special Jury is Called By Judge; Two Tonawanda Plants Picketed

FRANCE IS TERRORIZED

Total of Persons Out of Work Reaches 180,000; Dock Workers to Quit

PORTSMOUTH, June 29.—(UP)—The strike siege at the Wheeling Steel Corp. plant here ended today. The plant had been the center of intermittent violence since the strike started on May 22.

Special deputies and other officers guarded the plant closely. The 250 company executives and employees who had been victims of the strike started were able to picket lines unmolested. They had been engaged in maintenance of machinery and equipment.

Sheriff Arthur Oakes issued a mandate against carrying weapons or violence. He said strikers had agreed not to obstruct those within the plant or to prevent transportation of food.

Judge J. F. Kibble called a special session of the county grand jury for Thursday to investigate the strike. He made no specific mention of the strike.

One man was killed and another wounded last week in clashes at the plant.

TONAWANDA, N. Y., June 29

(UP)—Striking employees of Remington-Rand, Inc., established picket lines around the company's two Tonawanda plants again today.

300 Remain Out

Union officials said that between 30 and 50 employees who had gone back to work joined the strike. They said more than 300 employees were still out.

Company officials, however, said that enough employees were at work to enable both plants to operate at near normal capacity.

NEGRO CHILDREN TO TAKE PART IN PROGRAM OF WPA

The WPA playground program was launched in Circleville Monday morning when more than 50 boys, over 10, reported to Martin Hickey at the Southern Ohio Electric Co. field. More are expected Tuesday.

Hickey, WPA official, plans numerous activities for the youths, with softball to be stressed.

The program will be extended to the Walnut street school Tuesday morning when all colored children are urged to report. Wilbur Griffith, director of the county playground project, announced Monday that the negro children will be in charge of colored instructors. Donald Johnson and Georgietta Hill being named. The children are to report at 9:30 a. m.

It is hoped to have other Circleville school grounds open before the end of the week.

PRESIDENT AND CHIEF ADVISORS DISCUSS PLANS

Horner, Lehman, Murphy and Others Visit Hyde Park Home; What of Farley?

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 29.—(UP)—President Roosevelt began a series of conferences in his Hyde Park home today with party leaders laying plans to put into immediate effect the offensive campaign that he outlined Saturday night in Philadelphia.

The chief executive had engagements today with Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois and Frank Murphy, high commissioner to the Philippine Islands, who is being talked of as potential Michigan gubernatorial timber.

Mr. Roosevelt laid aside temporarily the interest in New York state politics which he has displayed lately and which was evidenced again yesterday when he breakfasted and talked for two hours with Gov. Herbert H. Lehman. New York Democrats had hoped that the conference would resolve doubt whether Governor Lehman will be a candidate for renomination to succeed himself. It did not do so.

Sought By President

Lehman has said that he does not want the nomination. Sources close to the president have indicated that Mr. Roosevelt would like to have him on the ticket this fall for the strength he undoubtedly would give it. But Lehman left for Albany after the meeting without new comment on his plans.

There was a feeling among friends of both Mr. Roosevelt and Governor Lehman that they would welcome an end of the ballyhoo from well meaning supporters of the governor designed to "draft" him. Commentators pointed out that although Lehman's name on the ticket admittedly would attract votes, the effect of over-emphasis of his desirability might be to insinuate that Mr. Roosevelt could not carry the state without him.

Governor Horner of Illinois was to discuss with Mr. Roosevelt the political situation in Illinois, where he has engaged in a bitter war with the Chicago Democratic machine of Mayor Edward J. Kelly. Murphy, just returned from the far east, was expected to acquaint the president with conditions there.

The president's desk was swamped with telegrams, most of them congratulatory, about his speech in Philadelphia accepting renomination. His secretaries said the White House at Washington received many more.

It was considered possible that before Mr. Roosevelt boards a special train to return to Washington tonight he might announce whether and when Postmaster General James A. Farley, who also is chairman of the Democratic national committee, will resign his government job. The president indicated at his press conference last Friday that he would be ready to discuss Farley's political future as soon as the Democratic national convention adjourned.

Remember When?

A number of southend residences were threatened by a gasoline fire Feb. 2, 1920.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

By Charles P. Stewart

The Democratic party is leaving the Philadelphia convention behind without definitely meeting the third party threat.

It is true that a liberal platform and "speeches directly to the people" have gone a great deal farther than the platform and the speeches of the Republicans.

The fact remains, however, that a large element in the northwest and in the industrial regions of Michigan, Ohio and western Pennsylvania is not at all mollified.

It is queer that the Coughlin-Lemke group term the Rooseveltians "communists" for going too far, while at the same time revolting because the Rooseveltians do not go "far enough."

Within the Coughlin-Lemke group are three elements. There are the agrarian progressives, then the group that believes inflation is a cure-all, and finally men (who, although they may not realize it) have Fascist tendencies—and who are quite the reverse of Progressives. These last named object to the New Deal, as much as do the reactionaries, yet have catch phrases that the popular.

The Democrats cannot hope to mollify that particular group. But the Democrats could hope to make it powerless by disaffecting the down-right Progressives from the others.

NOT UNITED

It is obvious why the Democrats have failed to meet the issue squarely. The Democrats—as the Republicans—have many divergent forces Tammany and the south, and the south and the Progressive north-west, simply will not mix.

President Roosevelt had tried to lead gradually. The speeches have been his words, not the words of the convention. The cheers have been for party victory, not for principle or policy.

The president, therefore, has pulled his punches. Much has been said militantly, but the issues which the New Deal itself raised have not been fully met. Check them off yourself.

It is possible that the president believes once he is in power again, he can fight for his cause as he did during his first year.

The Republicans realize that, indeed, that is their campaign argument. They assert President Roosevelt, no matter what words are spoken now, will go ahead with the New Deal.

Paradoxically, the vast restless masses are not so certain.

MARY MORRIS, who edits the society page for The Herald, is having her home on Watt street remodeled, and she has been having her troubles.

The other day she detected a brick-layer halving the bricks with his trowel. With a triumphant gleam in her eyes she approached him swiftly and said, "Isn't that rather a primitive way of cutting a brick in half?"

The man looked up, smiled and said: "Bless your heart, lady, there's a far more primitive way than that, believe me."

"Really, and what's that?" she inquired.

the victories of the right during the closing hours of congress. When Senators Vandenberg of Michigan, Steiwer of Oregon, Townsend of Delaware and Holt of West Virginia killed the Guffey coal bill, the president probably lost thousands of votes in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia to a third party. The miners probably said: "Oh, what's the use?"

The blame falls not on the Republican senators and the revolting Democratic senator, but on the New Dealers who failed to hold the fort successfully. The last days of congress always are field days for the opposition.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Every once in a while, something electrifying happens on the screen, a new picture, a new personality emerges to make audiences tingle. This time it is a picture flushed with enchanting music, cleaved with a gay, amusing story, directed with the utmost finesse, acted by an excellent cast—and possessed of the screen's loveliest voice—Grace Moore.

At the Cliftona theatre yesterday, Columbia's musical romance "The King Steps Out," burst forth in all its Viennese splendor. In it, Miss Moore lifts her lyric soprano voice to the tune of Fritz Kreisler music, and succeeds in thrilling all within hearing.

Handsome, talented Franchot Tone plays opposite the diva in the role of Emperor Francis Josef of Austria, a young monarch in search of a bride; he plays the part in fine fashion. Bouquets must also be thrust at Walter Connolly, who once more turns in a bull's-eye performance; Raymond Walburn, an excellent character actor who also, in his short film career, has known no wrong; Victor Jory, Elisabeth Risdon, Nana Bryant, Frieda Inescourt, Thurston Hall and Herman Bing.

AT THE GRAND

"The Story of Louis Pasteur," Paul Muni's new starring vehicle for Cosmopolitan Productions the feature attraction at the Grand theatre.

Muni, who had won fame by his stage characterizations, has made one smashing, artistic success after another since he began motion picture work, including such outstanding attractions as "Scarface," "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang," "Black Fury," "Bordertown" and "Dr. Socrates."

Now, in a sensational screen drama, he has a role that is heralded as the greatest work of his career.

RUSSIAN STEAK

Two pounds of round steak, pound well, dredge with flour and cut into pieces about three inches square. Simmer two cups of onions sliced in four tablespoons of shortening until golden but not brown. Remove the onions and in the same shortening brown the pieces of meat. When well browned, sprinkle with flour, add salt and pepper to taste. Add onions, one cup water and one cup sour cream.

Cook very slowly until the meat is tender, about one and one-half hours. This meat dish may be cooked in a deep frying pan on top of the stove, or in the oven. The sour cream makes a delicious gravy.

For pain in the face, earache or toothache, fill a small bag with salt, heat it, cover with flannel and apply to aching part.

Did you participate in the Herald's recipe contest last week? It is easy to do, you know, and cash is awarded to three persons each week who have winning recipes.

This contest requires almost no effort on the part of entrants. The rules are easy to follow, also. So there's no reason why you cannot send in an entry this week and every week if you wish. Do not send more than one a week, however.

Do as your neighbor is doing, ladies! Enter the contest now! All you are required to do is this:

Select a recipe you like, write it down, fasten to it a label or tag from one of the products advertised on this page, or a sales slip from one of the advertisers, and mail or bring your entry to the Herald office, not later than Thursday afternoon. That is all there is to it!

The prizes are as follows: first $3, second $2, and third $1. All of the recipes submitted will then be turned over to judges who will pick three winners. These winners will be announced on the Household Page next Monday.

The Household Editor would like to remind all who submit entries to make sure they have sufficient postage attached to their envelope if they mail their recipes.

The names of the ladies and their winning recipes for this week follow. Send in YOUR entry now! You may be one of the lucky winners next week.

1½ cups flour

3 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. paprika
1 tsp. celery salt
¼ tsp. pepper—white
5 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup milk
¼ cup sliced onion
1 can tomato soup

½ lb. ground beef.

Sift together flour, baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, paprika, celery salt and pepper, add 3 tablespoons shortening and mix with fork. Add milk, stir until blended. Melt remaining 2 tablespoons shortening in 9 inch frying pan, and cook onion until soft. Add tomato soup, remaining ½ teaspoon salt and ground meat; bring to boil. Spread baking powder mixture on top of meat mixture, and bake in hot oven at 475°F. for about 20 minutes. Turn upside down on large plate. Serves 8.

This recipe was accompanied by a sales slip from the Griffith & Martin store.

spoon soda in enough water to cover for 10 minutes. Drain off this water and add fresh boiling water. Cook until tender but whole, having just enough water to cover beans. Salt to taste and add rest of ingredients. Dice bacon and put in beans leaving 2 or 3 stripes to put on top. Bake in moderate oven about one hour.

FARMS AND VETERANS

IN SEEKING to restrain the enthusiasm of veterans eager to join the back-to-the-land movement, the Farm Credit Administration is displaying commendable foresight and sound judgment which is certain to prove of practical benefit to those who are without full knowledge of the problems and difficulties involved in farm life.

The land banks have farms to sell and money to lend. They make loans up to 75 per cent of the appraised value of the farms purchased. The whole prospect seems quite alluring to veterans who envision the possibility of obtaining a home and insuring their subsistence.

"But," warns W. I. Myers, Farm Credit Administration governor, "I want to make plain that we are not seeking to sell farms to city-bred veterans who have had no farming experience. Just as much knowledge and experience are required to run a farm profitably as to succeed in any other business."

This is good advice and the veterans who are lacking in practical farm experience will do well to accept it. They have nothing to gain by plunging recklessly into an enterprise which they are not qualified to promote successfully.

SUMMER IN THE GARDEN

MIDSUMMER in the garden is a race between the gardener and his enemies. Which is ahead, the gardener, or the weeds and pests? As you look through many of the home grounds, the gardener is seen to be limping badly, and a good deal out of breath.

But the weeds and the pests are going strong. The weeds can live on soil where plants will die, even after long and tender coaxing. When the gardener disposes of one crop of those wicked bugs, the next morning an equally powerful army are feasting on his plants, growing fat and sportive on the soil enriched by his fertilizer and faithful watering.

The sun is a lot hotter in midsummer than in April. It seemed so nice to spade up that garden plot in those stimulating spring days. But how does it go with the thermometer in the nineties?

The gardener has an answer to such objections. He gets up early in the morning, when the air still has the tonic quality of spring. Or he labors in the cool of the evening, when the sun's fierce heat has abated. He hoes down the weeds before they get to a saucy and impudent height, where he can't rip them out without endangering his plants.

You have confidence in a man who presents a clean and well cared for garden. It shows he is faithful and industrious. When you see such a display of carefully tended vegetables and flowers, you believe that the man who possesses them will do well in any occupation he chooses. He is adequate for anything he dares try out. If a boy wants a job, let him show what

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:
Up, and perusing the papers did give thanks that the political conventions are history, although found much of interest in the Saturday night talk of our President.

Still lingers the drought, although the weatherman is relaying to the extent of encouraging hope of rain. Out of some of these dark clouds will fall the silver lining so much needed in these parts. Pastures are burned out, but wheat, now being harvested, is excellent, and corn doing well, although murling somewhat under the daily hot sun.

So around the ville, meeting John W. Glaze, wife and four children, of Des Moines, Ia., John being a former carrier of these prints, and visiting here for the first time in fifteen years. John attended school in Mary Wilber, the efficient librarian, and among other memories recalled Mrs. Edson Crites, formerly Emma Dreisbach, and Mrs. John W. Nave, who was Ella Seall. After looking us over John expressed regret over leaving although he has done exceedingly well in the state of tall corn.

Here's Hulse Hays who is much busied now considering ways and means of improving mail service in and out of the town and who will discuss the situation Tuesday at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. Fine work, Hulse, and more power to you. There goes Tom Gilliland, the lumber and builder's supply merchant, riding the crest of a wave of construction that exceeds anything known in these parts during recent years. In chat with Bill Crist, right now chief of all the fishermen, who not only lands the big ones he hooks, but the ones lost by his angling companions as well.

Off by wagon for a tour of the canal south of town and inspection of that federal aid park in this district. The boys really are doing something constructive, making a beauty spot out of a view that formerly was far from attractive. Ovens and picnic benches are being constructed, paths built, two log cabins completed for change of clothing by swimmers. Concrete sidewalks and a concrete or sand bottom would make of the canal at that point a swimming hole without equal. Good water, shaded by beautiful trees both morning and afternoon, a place of scenic beauty.

See by the paper where the WPA is broadening the scope of its playground project. A worthy undertaking and one that will pay big dividends. This paper advocated such a program early in the Spring. The WPA and playground supervisors may depend on the publication for whole-hearted support. Such a program rounds out the work of our educational institutions. The cost of the undertaking will not be great and the money might have been spent to much less advantage.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT E. ALLEN

JAPANESE SMUGGLING IN CHINA

WASHINGTON—With Congress and the Conventions out of the way, the President is expected to give some quiet study to the international field, especially to the Far East and a common policy with Great Britain.

This was the principal subject of discussion during the recent conference between Roosevelt and Frank Murphy, High Commissioner to the Philippines.

Not much is being said about it, but the situation in the Far East is anything but cheerful for the U. S. Smuggling of Japanese goods into China under protection of Japanese gunboats threatens to ruin American exports completely. The high-handed treatment of Americans in Peiping by Japanese troops recently provoked a strong protest by the State Department.

Meanwhile, Murphy reported, there has been an increasing influx of Japanese goods and nationals into the Philippines. The entire situation has been aggravated somewhat by the Los Angeles indictment of a Japanese lieutenant commander for obtaining naval secrets from an ex-petty officer in the U. S. Navy.

ANGLO-AMERICAN COOPERATION?

Roosevelt has told several who have conferred with him recently that he expects Japan, sooner or later, to take all of China.

This also is the tune the British have been humming in his ear. It is why the British have offered all kinds of inducements to get U. S. naval support. Even the much-prized Singapore base has been put at the disposal of our warships. In fact, the British seem willing almost to present the base as a gift.

ETHIOPIAN HOLE

However, the president got himself into a slight hole the last time he cooperated with the British.

This was in connection with the arms embargoes. Sir Ronald Lindsay came down to the State Department after the conquest of Abyssinia, secretly urged that United States stand with Britain in retaining the embargo. London wanted a united front against Italy.

The State Department acquiesced. Then, without a word of warning, London newspapers announced that the British were reversing their policy, removing sanctions.

This would have put Roosevelt in the position of removing his arms embargo only after Britain and the League said it was O. K. Republicans could make a lot of capital out of that.

So Roosevelt rushed out an announcement ending the embargoes. It came after the British decision on sanctions, but at least it was ahead of the League.

All of which is why the President is looking extra cautiously at the British proposal of cooperation in the Far East.

COPYRIGHT: RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER XI
JOAN LITERALLY stormed up the stairs to her own room after Julian had told her she couldn't leave him because she had been the best secretary he had ever had. Then she sat down and thought about the brief conversation which she had terminated so rudely and was immediately ashamed of her lack of manners. She felt humiliated by her own behavior which she did not analyze. Had she retraced her emotions, she would have saved herself much unhappiness that she was yet to face. For the moment she was contented with what she had done and not what she had thought.

Like a little girl, she smoothed her frock, her hair and her ruffled collar and meekly took herself downstairs once more.

Julian was sitting before the hearth in the library. She began timidly and penitently, "Will you please forgive me? I . . . I don't know what came over me. There isn't any reason for my doing anything so rude. I . . ."

"Come in, Joan. There isn't any reason for you to apologize. That was a most selfish remark for me to make. And I have been quite blind. You look very tired. You've been working under a strain all winter. That is entirely my fault. I have no right to expect that others are carried along on the wave of my own enthusiasm for work. It's going to be lighter now. Cream?"

Joan took her coffee and slipped it slowly without talking for a few minutes. She was struck anew with Julian's charm and tact.

For a moment she was filled with peace. It flowed over her comfortingly in the fire-lit room, emphasized by the storm that had shaken her so short a time before. She felt wordless . . . still. Unseeing, and glad to be relieved of the maelstrom of the thoughts that had occupied her for so long, she gazed pensively into the leaping flames.

Julian studied her and saw depths beneath the shadows in her eyes, in the pensive droop of her slighter figure. He read the growing maturity in the changing contour of her face. He saw sadness there and read with a pang the truth that Joan's maturity had come through sorrow. He could not guess what that sorrow might have been but he knew that the conflict had been within her only since he had known her, for this was not the Joan who had come to him less than a year ago.

He marveled that they should have been so close—working . . . whether, sharing the same roof—and he should not have seen it before. He suffered for her, sensing those things, and for himself. She seemed so pitifully young to him, so alone. So far removed by years. To Joan, at 23, he must have seemed an old man at 40. He sighed for what was not.

As though divining his thoughts, Joan turned to him then to tell him that she had been working under a strain but she surprised an expression in his glance that stopped her words.

And suddenly the silence between them was unendurable.

"They both began to speak at the same time."

"What were you going to be married?"

"Will you tell me about it, Joan?"

If Joan had only spoken first! She passed her hand over her head wearily. "Yes, I think I am."

"Think?" Joan misread the sharp note in Julian's voice. Her nerves were on edge. Months of emotional strain had frayed them to a breaking point and she had never accepted the thought that Julian's interest might possibly be personal. Now, when he repeated her word too quickly, she answered firmly:

"I meant that I am going to be married."

"Alex?" He asked.

"No," Joan managed what she hoped was a bright, happy smile. "Not Alex. Donald Newberry. You've met him when he's come to call for me here."

"Oh, yes," Julian tried to remember which one of them it had been.

"He's . . ." What could she say he was? A girl ought to be able to talk for hours about the man she was planning to marry. Certainly Donald was interesting to her or she could never have arrived at such a decision. She couldn't even remember when she had arrived at that decision unless it was at the dinner table an hour before. "Why, he's a stockbroker. Very charming, very handsome. He . . . I like him."

Julian might have repeated another word she had just said but, hating himself because he felt like a grandfather, he questioned her gently.

"Can he take care of you, Joan. I mean, financially?"

"Yes," she said. "He's doing all right. Why couldn't he take care of me?"

"Have you set the date for your marriage?"

"No. You see . . . he . . . he isn't divorced yet."

Did she imagine that Julian seemed to relax then?

"Oh," he said, and that was all. "I didn't have anything to do with that. He and his wife have been . . . they haven't been living together for a long time since long before I met him. I've known him for a great many years. That is, I knew him when I was a little girl."

"Do you love him very much, Joan?" Julian hadn't meant to ask her that question.

She put her cup down very carefully as though a jar might break it. Or something within herself.

"No." Her voice was very low but it was rather as though it was a reasonable statement that did not brook discussion.

"Then why?" Julian's voice was as low as her own.

"It seems a right, wise thing for me to do. I've discovered that I'm lonesome. I'm not a career woman. I have no art to develop. I have nothing that makes my life complete. I don't know how I feel about it. I guess that's all the answer there is."

"He doesn't love you," Julian said it so firmly that Joan found herself arrested.

"He says he does. And does a man ever get married unless he is in love?" Or to get married money? She might have added except that she no longer felt that Donald had done a lesser thing by his first marriage. She had adjusted herself to seeing his point of view.

"Not unless he is a fool. But it is cruel to allow a woman to marry a man she doesn't love. The real love, that is both passion and affection, and different from any other kind of love in the world, is the only thing that makes the harmony that has lifted marriage to the most beautiful relationship in the world."

Joan heard every word that he said as it dropped quietly into the depths of her heart to stay there forever.

But because she was young, she said, "It all sounds beautiful but I just don't believe in it. I don't see why this won't work the same way. Love doesn't last forever. Companionship and affection grow together."

"They do, when they have the right foundation. . . . Joan, you are so young. You have all of life before you. Your life to share with someone you love. You have the wonderful world to see."

"There are cool forests and mountain streams and Venice in the moonlight and the coast of Ireland. The bazaars of the east and the pageantry of the western world. You have to see them through the eyes of the person you love, to see their cosmic meaning."

"Julian," Joan didn't realize that she called him that, "you must have been in love I understand these things."

"I'm thinking of them now for the first time," he answered.

"Then you have been in love," she said with a tremor of awe in her voice.

"I fell in love too late," he answered.

AS OPPOSED to the two occasions when declarer should at once pull trumps, either by leading them or by forcing a defender to ruff an established side suit, as detailed last Wednesday, there are three kinds of holdings when declarer as positively must not pull trumps before he has accomplished another purpose. The first of such types is as illustrated by the hand shown below. Dummy's long suit must be led before trumps are pulled, or declarer will be unable to obtain enough discards of losers to fulfill a game contract.

Bidding went: South, 1-Heart; North, 1-Spade; South, 2-Hearts; North, 3-Hearts; South, 4-Hearts. The opening lead was the 4 of diamonds. Declarer's Ace won. At once he led a spade. West's K took the trick. West led a low trump. Declarer's K won. South's last spade was led. East's Ace won. The next East led a low spade, obliging declarer to ruff high. Then he pulled trumps in two leads, leaving dummy in. Two rounds of winning spades were taken. On them South let go a losing diamond and one club, but he finally had to give defenders a club trick. Declarer should have pulled trumps after he had deprived defenders of one of their high spade honors, then he could have discarded all minor suit losers on dummy's three good spades. While he could not afford to lead trumps before discarding one high spade honor, he need not have waited until both high honors had been pulled. That error cost South a trick. West's lead of a trump, when he won his spade trick, also was foolish. He should have again led a diamond, effectually preventing the chance of declarer making 5 odd.

It should be noted that defenders cannot defeat the contract by leading trumps three times—making an opening heart lead, then repeating that strategy when West and when East enter with their top spades. That sort of strategy will surely give declarer 5 odd, as defenders will be good enough to establish dummy's long suit, insuring declarer's ability to discard his one loser in diamonds and his two losers in clubs on dummy's three long spades, provided declarer establishes that suit, starting to do so on the first time either he or dummy wins a trump trick.

An opening lead of clubs will have the same effect as an opening lead of diamonds, provided declarer uses the same tactics of establishing spades as rapidly as possible. All he need lose are three tricks in the black suits. The next type of hand will be shown on Monday.

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A NEW IDEA was presented at one of the exhibits of the American Medical association this year by the American Institute of Laundering of Joliet, Ill. The institute is owned by the National Laundrymen's association, and is devoted to solving technical problems. The particular investigation which the institute undertook was a comparison between the number of germs in clothes after being laundered in a commercial laundry and a home laundry.

There is a widespread belief that clothes which go to a commercial laundry come back with the germs mixed, and the clothes come home with other people's germs clinging to them. The investigation certainly proved that that statement is untrue.

Comparing clothes washed in nine typical homes with clothes washed in a commercial laundry, the bacterial count was found to be 1 per cent in the commercial laundry, and 318,000 per cent in the home laundries. The laundries which were studied were in typical homes of every class, graded on the basis of American income. Making a bacterial count of clothes, it was found, as might be expected, that the highest bacterial count was in June and July and the next highest in August and September.

More Bacteria in Warm Weather
"This study shows the tremendous amount of bacteria held in clothes worn during the warm months of the year, when perspiration induced by exercise and a high temperature is common. Germs which cling to skin are contaminated with skin bacteria, and the warmth affords excellent seeding conditions."

The reason that the commercial laundry is able to bring the bacterial count down better than the home is probably due to three conditions: one, that the temperature of the water in the home is never as high for as long a time as in the laundry; second, because the laundry uses nearly three times as much water as the average of the homes, and that it rinses oftener in clean water and with fresh suds.

The exhibit was, of course, a strong argument in favor of commercial laundries, but there is no reason why the home laundry should not learn a lesson from the undoubtedly accurate results which the institute reports. Boiling the clothes longer, separating different kinds of clothes, using more water and more rinses, could bring the efficiency of the home laundry close to that of the commercial laundry.

The institute contemplates some further researches, especially fool-proof special handling of washing from homes with quarantizable diseases, washing machine and clothes do not now permit laundries to handle in a practical manner. This will afford great help to those who have the care of patients with contagious diseases, as there is no time when frequent changing of bed linen is more necessary.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendenening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenening, in care of this paper. Behind the crumbling gray mud-brick walls of the oasis, El Oued, protected from the blazing heat of the Sahara sun by the palm trees, the Kel-Kadigi Tuaregs harvested their date crop.

It was a peaceful happy scene until Ifali, son of the Sheik, perched high on a palm, sighted a strange caravan.

Instantly the dates were forgotten. Who were the approaching strangers? Here was a mystery, and Ifali and two other boys played dramatic parts in the attempt to solve the puzzle of the caravan that disappeared. A realistic and thrilling story of desert life which older boys are sure to like.

Bride Wears Gown of Her Mother for Pretty Service

Before an improvised altar of ferns, carnations, and snapdragons, Miss Kathryn Ruth Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hill, Orient, became the bride of Mr. William Edwin Arbogast, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Arbogast of Mt. Sterling, at a home wedding on Sunday evening, June 28. A profusion of flowers decorated the Hillsdale home for the occasion.

Rev. W. Newton Mantle read the services which were preceded by the tenor solos "I Love You Truly" and "Oh, Promise Me" sung by Mr. E. A. Rigdon, a friend of the bride and groom. Miss Maxine Bower, a former roommate of the bride accompanied Mr. Rigdon and played the wedding march.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory silk gathered full at the waist and trimmed at the neck and sleeves with beaded net. Her floor length veil was trimmed with orange blossoms and she carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses and delphinium.

Miss Helen Hill, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a frock of the same period, of orchid organdie with inserts of ivory lace in the waist and full skirt, and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and delphinium.

Mr. John Arbogast of Mt. Sterling, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

The bride, a teacher, attended college at Capital University.

Mr. Arbogast is associated with the Polo Equipment Company and the Ohio Willow Wood Company in Mt. Sterling where the couple will reside.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Arbogast left for Cleveland where they will attend the Great Lakes Exposition.

Mrs. Arbogast is the grand daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hott of Robtown.

Miss Martha Leist Hostess
Mrs. Lee Yunker, of Madison, Indiana, who is the guest of her sister Mrs. George Crites, S. Court street, was honor guest at a bridge tea Saturday afternoon at the Maramor in Columbus.

Miss Martha Leist, Watt street, was hostess.

A delightful afternoon was spent in playing bridge with prizes being awarded Miss Margaret Mattinson, Mrs. Howard Stevenson and Mrs. Ned Thacher. Mrs. Yunker was presented a handsome guest prize.

Mrs. Glenn Bierman and Mrs. Stoddard Raper of Columbus and Mrs. Comer J. Kimball, New York City, were invited in addition to a number of Circleville ladies.

Attend Row Wedding
Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Brooks and daughter Ruth Louise were among the guests who attended the wedding of Mrs. Brook's brother Glen R. Row to Miss Martha Reichart, Saturday, July 27, at 7:30 o'clock at the home of the bride at 1389 S. 6th street, Columbus.

Miss Mary Murtaugh played the wedding march.
Rev. T. B. Hax, pastor of the Emanuel Lutheran church, performed the single ring ceremony before an improvised altar of palms and garden flowers.

The bride chose for her wedding a floor length dress of white lace with short puffed sleeves and high collar, both trimmed with white net. She carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and Baby Breath.

Miss Caroline Row, sister of the groom, was maid of honor. Her dress was powder blue chiffon, with tailored neck and puff sleeves and her flowers were pink roses and blue delphinium.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Reichart of 1389 S. 6th street, Columbus.

The groom, a son of R. L. Row of Jackson township, is well known in this county.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held for relatives and close friends. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Row will be at home to friends at 491 Catherine street, Columbus.

R. L. Row, daughters Ruth and Bernice and son Pete of Jackson attended the wedding.

A Regal Bird in Radiant Stitchery

PATTERN 5648

Isn't it a stunning design—this oval-shaped peacock motif? Colorful too, and such quick stitchery! See how beautifully it enhances an otherwise plain bedspread! Though rich in design it's formed mainly of single, outline and running stitches—the accompanying color chart is your guide when choosing shades of wool or rope silk to use. Corner motifs are for bolster or scarf.

In pattern 5648 you will find a transfer pattern of a motif 15x18 inches and two and two reverse motifs 4 1/2 x 4 1/2 inches; material requirements; color suggestions, and illustrations of all stitches used.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 210 N. Court street, Circleville, O. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

BIOLOGICAL WAR ON PESTS BEGINS

RIVERSIDE, Cal. (UP)—America's intensive study of biology and sexology for the past 20 years at last may be utilized in bringing harmful parasites under biological control, according to Dr. S. E. Flanders, entomologist of the University of California's Citrus Experiment station. Today, virtually the only defense of citrus growers against parasites has been the spraying with chemicals at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. Under the new system of biological control, where the parasite may become extinct through the simple means of non-propagation, Dr. Flanders hopes to solve the problem without further expense either to the state or to the citrus grower.

Dr. Flanders' first intimation that such a control might be attained came when it developed that many colonies of various parasites brought from countries of the world to the university's insectary station failed to thrive there. Most of these parasites were of a beneficial nature which, if they could be introduced into American orchards, nurseries and plant life generally, would have been of great value.

As a consequence, Dr. Flanders began at once an intensive study of the life, traits of certain of these colonies of parasites which, while thriving in other parts of the world, could not reproduce in California. He found that the failure of the newly introduced difficulty came about by the colonies to propagate. The study then was limited to an observation of the mating and propagation of the tiny parasites.

ANN COOPER HEWITT, San Francisco heiress who filed a $500,000 sterilization suit against her mother several months ago, is pictured looking over a check for $150,000 given to her in settlement of a claim against her mother. parasites male eggs are produced only by unmated females and female eggs only by mated females. As a consequence, explains, if only unmated females are colonized in groves, the pogeny will all be males and the colony likewise will become extinct.

With this discovery as a basis, Dr. Flanders is working out a program whereby he hopes to be able to maintain a complete biological control not only of the citrophilus mealybug, but of other parasites injurious to orchards and vegetable gardens.

MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN

PATTERN 9919

Want to look cool and willless when the town's temperature is up? Then choose this delightful Marian Martin frock whose soft and supple lines do marvelous things for your figure. And do you see how the raglan lines of the gracefully flared sleeves will make your shoulders appear broad, while your hips (in contrast) look so much slimmer? The diagonal hip-line of the skirt panel adds this fashion magic, too—for you'll seem inches taller. There's a touch of gay flattery in that novel little yoke-jabot, and see how cleverly it is played up by snappy buttons! ## HELFRICHS WIN FROM ASHVILLE

Victory Gained 5 to 2;
Saunders in Good Form

New Holland turned back the first threat against its county championship claims Sunday when Ashville was defeated 5 to 2 on the Helfrich lot, west of the village.

Shadel Saunders, tall New Holland hurler, was in good form and has the Harrison township crew at his mercy most of the time. Bo Wellington and Sug Pettibone divided the mound duties for the Ashville squad.

Several errors at shortstop with Wink Wellington guilty, largely through an injured ankle, helped the New Holland cause.

Next Sunday New Holland will play the fast Lancaster Coca Colas.

GRANT HAS GOOD CHANCE TO UPSET TENNIS STAR

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 29.—(UP)—Bryan Grant, Jr., the "mighty mite" of Atlanta, Ga., has the opportunity today of becoming to tennis what Maxie Schmeling is to boxing.

A victory by Grant over Fred Perry, the world's No. 1 tennis player, in the quarter-finals of the all-England tennis championships, would be as much of a sports upset as Schmeling's whipping Louis.

The match, however, promised to draw the largest gallery of the tournament. The British have been captivated by the tiny Georgian's pit-pat, retrieving style of game, the exact opposite of Perry's smashing, driving tactics.

BALL PLAYER DIES AFTER BEING HIT BY BASEBALL

NEW YORK, June 29.—(UP)—Funeral services were being completed today for Harry Kronenber, 24, sand lot baseball player, who died in United Israel Zion hospital yesterday from a skull injury received when hit by a pitched ball.

Kronenber jumped up immediately after being felled by the ball which struck his temple, and apparently felt no ill effects from the blow. He went home and went to bed, but became violently ill about midnight.

Rushed to a hospital, Kronenber steadily became worse after an emergency operation and did not respond to an administration of oxygen by a police squad.

CHICAGO GOLFER WINS MISSISSIPPI TOURNEY

WICHITA, Kans., June 29.—(UP)—The smooth-stroking Chicago ace, Johnny Dawson, today held the trans Mississippi golf tournament title which he missed twice previously only in the finals.

The cool Chicago player yesterday broke the spectacular playing of George Matson of Wichita, who eliminated defending champion Johnny Goodman, and won the title 3 and 2.

Dawson was the first man in the tournament to match Matson's shooting. The Wichita, a "dark horse" entry, slipped in the late going, fatigued after a week of gruelling tournament play.

Grand Old Game

Never let it be said we slight either league. The National League is even more prolific in its releases, though we must admit that a better job is done by the affable Bill Brandt.

He has gone to much trouble digging out the rules of baseball as late 1876 and sent them on so that the fans will know what it is all about when those old-fashioned ball games are played in the various cities around the loop.

The pitcher used to stand in a box six feet square and the batter asked for the kind of pitch he wanted—high, low or fair. Fans can get a taste of this old game and decide whether they like it the way it used to be served up. That is, with ten men on a team, nine balls for a walk and four strikes to an out. Will they be amused at uniforms with neckties to add the neatness of the players' appearance?

But to get back to the tenth man. He was a right shortstop and played about where the second baseman plays today. The key-stone sacker in those days hugged the second sack. The pitcher's box was forty-five feet from the home plate and the pitcher had to throw the ball underhand. If he failed it was a foul ball, and three such bails in one inning cost a team the game by a score of 9 to 0.

The umpire sat in a chair near, but not behind, the plate, and never left it to call a decision. He used a cane to wave the players out.

Amusing is the role of the '76 catcher. He stood many feet behind the plate, catching the ball on a bounce or two. He wore no protection whatsoever, not even a glove. On a strike-out he had to catch the ball without a bounce or on one bounce; otherwise he would have to throw the runner out at first. And foul flies were out in those days if they were nabbed on one bounce. However, fair flies had to be caught before they touched the ground to be out.

One amusing incident is the manner of pitching to the batsman. In taking his position, the batter could ask for a high, low or fair ball. The umpire would tell the pitcher the batsman's preference, and after the first pitch the batter could not change his choice. "High" meant between the waist and shoulders; "low" between the waist and knee; "Fair" meant anywhere between the shoulders and knees.

Until the batter had two strikes on him, it was a strike whether or not he swung at the ball if it came over the right level. After two strikes, he got an extra chance to look one over. If the third strike was over and the batter did not swing, the umpire called it a "good ball" and the batter was out on the next strike whether he swung or not. However, if the third strike was fanned, the batter was out. And waiting out a pitcher was kind of tough, as you needed nine balls.

There were no pinch-hitters in those days and substitutes could be employed only in case of illness. If a ball became lost, five minutes were devoted to searching for it before a new one was used. They used to have high, unclipped grass on the fields in those days. Hence the lost ball rule.

BABA, MARSHALL TANGLE TONIGHT IN HEAVY BOUT

COLUMBUS, June 29.—(UP)—Everett Marshall, a persistent challenger in the muddled ranks of heavyweight wrestling champions for the last several years, will receive an opportunity to win the mat title here tonight when he meets Ali Baba of Turkey.

Ali Baba, stepped into the heavyweight championship when he defeated Dick Shikat, Germany, at Detroit on April 24.

Ali Baba's victory was under "odd" circumstances as he relieved Shikat of the title while the latter was in the midst of a contract war in the United States Federal court here. A group of eastern promoters, headed by Jack Curley, sought to hold Shikat to a contract signed previous to the time he threw Danno O'Mahoney of Ireland and then "jumped" to the mid-western wrestling group controlled by Al Haft of Columbus.

Tonight's match is for one fall to win, with a time limit of 90 minutes.

The match will be held at Red Bird stadium, home of the Columbus baseball club, and promoters expected a crowd of between 10,000 and 15,000 persons.

THREE PUT IN CITY'S JAIL FOR INTOXICATION

Three men were arrested Saturday night for intoxication and one for disorderly conduct, police reported.

Those arrested for intoxication were Virgil Winder, 27, Greenup, Ky., William Arledge, 65, Ohio street, and Clifford Bunn, 46, Wayne township. All were released with lectures.

Police said Turney Clifton, 37, S. Court street, posted $10 bond to appear Monday evening in court on a disorderly conduct charge.

DETROIT FIGHTER TO GUEST STAR FRIDAY AT 7:30

Lupe Velez and Bob Ripley to Assist Vallee in Texas

Joe Louis, erstwhile Brown Bomber of the ring, has sufficiently recovered from his recent setback with Max Schmeling to make a radio appearance and he will come to the air as Frank Fay's guest next Friday night, July 3. Joe will tell Frank and the customers just how the disaster to the Detroit's ring hopes came about when they meet at the WJZ-NBC microphone at 7:30 p. m. (EST).

During the last few weeks Fay has been bringing guest stars to his program—Irene Bordoni, Bob Ripley, Jane Cowl and Deems Taylor have been on the list—but this is the first time he has entertained a sports figure at the microphone. Bobby Dolan, the versatile band leader who has been making a success of stooging in the Fay programs, will supply the accompaniments for Frank's songs with his band. The latest advice from the ringside indicate that Joe Louis will not sing.

VELEZ AND RIPLEY

Rudy Vallee is going to Texas to play an engagement at the Texas Centennial and the Variety Hour will originate there next Thursday, July 2. Lupe Velez is journeying from Hollywood and Bob Ripley from New York to join Rudy in Dallas for the broadcast over a WEAF-NBC network at 7 p. m. (EST). Other guest stars will be announced later.

Rudy left New York immediately after his broadcast last Thursday and is scheduled to play a series of one-night stands from Kansas City down through Texas, arriving at the Centennial Exposition in time to broadcast next week.

annual round-the-world trip in order to appear on this program and also the one the following week which will come from Houston. Directly after these broadcasts however he will head abroad on a three-months junket during the course of which he plans to encircle the globe with much of the traveling by air. On the Vallee Hour he will present one of his dramatized "Believe It or Not" stories.

NOTES—Harry Saiter and Harry Sosnick bands will alternate at seven and six-week intervals for a 26-week musical program beginning August 1. . . . Johnny Green, who played for Jack Benny, will handle the baton on the new Fred Astaire show starting Sept. 8. . . . Joan Marsh, film and radio warbler, has written a new song, "My Very Own". . . . # COUNT OF PRAISE TO CONSTRUCT NEW DORMITORIES

WORK TO START NEXT WEEK'S TIME OHIO STREET

Ferguson Announces Plans; Church Group to Spend About $3,000

Work will start next Monday on the two new dormitories on the Mount of Praise, Rev. O. L. Ferguson, pastor of the Church of Christ in Christian Union, announced Monday.

The buildings will be 20 by 116 feet and 16 by 40 feet. They will cost $3,000. Both will be of two-story construction. The larger building will be used for family rooms and the smaller will be used as a women's building.

Labor will all be donated, Rev. Ferguson said. Various churches in the district will contribute. Plans for the dormitories have been approved by the camp committee composed of Revs. Ferguson, E. A. Keaton of Chillicothe, and A. E. Sager of Columbus.

The camp session will open this week on Aug. 18 and continue for 12 days.

Many were arrested. Massed forces of police guarded the public squares and boulevards.

Dock Tie-Up Feared

Twenty thousand workers went out in the Moselle valley industrial district, making a total still on strike of about 180,000. Five thousand dock workers at Marseilles threatened to go out again, tying up shipping.

DEERCREEK TOWNSHIP DOG IS FOUND RABID

The county Board of Health received a report Monday afternoon from the state health department that a dog owned by George Miller, Williamsport, was rabid. The dog was sent to the department Saturday morning. Health officers were told the dog had bitten a number of other dogs in the Williamsport vicinity.

Negative reports were returned in two other cases, one a dog and the other a cat.

CHICAGO POLICE HUNT CLUB HOSTESS' KILLER

CHICAGO, June 29.—(UP)—A sleepily boy ran into a hotel lobby early today and sobbed out a story of a negro or masked man who beat his mother to death and then scrawled "Black Legion" in lipstick on a mirror.

The victim was Mrs. Florence Castle, pretty, 25-year-old divorcee and night club hostess. Her son, James, 7, awoke in the dimly-lighted hotel room to see the intruder "hitting mother about the ears" with a brick, questioned the man, and then lapsed back to sleep partly from weariness and partly from paralyzing fear.

'MADCAP SOLON' BACK IN OFFICE AFTER ESCAPING

lator appeared after midnight last night at the swanky Ambassador Hotel seeking lodging. This report had gained such a circulation that everyone in the Ambassador had heard it but none had actually seen Zioncheck.

Maryland state police made every effort to capture the young congressman before he escaped over the state line. He was branded a fugitive from justice and orders were issued to use force to subdue him.

Dr. Arthur Ellis Pattrell, acting superintendent of the Sheppard-Pratt sanitarium, the private institution to which Zioncheck was transferred in a "pack" from a Washington hospital last week, said he thought Zioncheck was going to Washington and said also that he would be "dangerous if caught."

All Roads Guarded

Deputy sheriffs and state policemen guarded every road leading from Towson and Baltimore toward the national capitol, where Zioncheck staged most of the escapades that led to his incarceration. They beat the 700-acre grounds of the Sheppard-Pratt sanitarium thoroughly, and searched roadside copes for miles.

At the same time they looked for his young bride, the former Ruby Louise Nix, on the theory that she might have helped him escape.

ties, where they destroyed most of the small grain, alfalfa and corn.

Farmers in several states appealed for federal aid to buy insect poison. In other sections, they bought their own arsenic to mix with bran and scattered in the path of invading insect armies from airplanes and wagons. Iowa alone has spread 75 carloads of the poison, each 100 pounds sufficient to kill 2,000,000 grasshoppers.

The grasshoppers strip one field and fly to another. They eat their own weight every 24 hours, agricultural experts estimated, and when they become as numerous as 17 per square yard on a 40-acre field, they will consume a ton of alfalfa a day. They even eat clothing and chew chunks from pitchfork handles.

Grasshoppers are harder to kill than most pests. Only the heaviest rains will drown them. When the heat becomes too intense, they rise in the air to cool off.

A state-by-state survey of the stricken sections:

MISSOURI—Grasshoppers have invaded 110 counties.

IOWA—Grasshoppers have destroyed grain, alfalfa and corn in 50 counties.

DAKOTAS—Wheat crop burned out in all but southeast South Dakota. North Dakota critically bruned except in north central section. Rangers in both states shipped livestock to other sections or sold at a loss.

OHIO—Unless good rains come soon, some crops may not even be harvested. Early potatoes and berry and fruits crops may be cut 50 per cent. Pasture conditions "extremely serious."

KANSAS—Forty counties organized to fight grasshoppers. Surface moisture needed.

TENNESSEE—NORTHERN MISSISSIPPI—Gardens and leguminous crops destroyed. Corn suffering immensely from drought.

ARKANSAS—Blister beetle and melon lice have made serious in-
